Belgium May Fly Troops To Congo

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Belgium announced Friday night that Belgian paratroopers have been flown in U.S. planes to a British island off West Africa to be ready — if needed for the rescue of whites held by Congo rebels in Stanleyville.

A Foreign Ministry statement said a battalion of Belgian paratroopers was awaiting further orders on the island of Ascension, six hours flying time from Stanleyville.

The State Department in Washington confirmed that the U.S. Air Force is cooperating with Belgium in preparations for the possible mission of rescuing white rebel-held hostages.

60 AMERICANS

About 60 Americans are among 1,000 foreigners being held by the rebels. Most of the hostages are Belgians.

Before the Belgian official statement was issued, a Congo government spokesman in Leopoldville said his government was opposed to any unilateral action in connection with the Stanleyville situation.

Emmanuel Sinda said such unilateral action would be aggression, but if a proposal were first made to the Congo government, "the latter would study it with favor."

The Belgian foreign minister reacted immediately. It confirmed that Belgian troops will not move without the agreement of the Leopoldville government.

"The Belgian government does not contemplate any kind of unilateral initiative in connection with the situation in the Congo," a spokesman said.

This meant the Belgians would consult the Congolese before sending their troops to Stanleyville.

Congolese army troops, led by detachments of white volunteers, including Belgians and South Africans, were moving swiftly north from the jungle city of Kindu toward Stanleyville through thick bush country against little resistance. They were reported in Brussels to be about 155 miles from Stanleyville. Kindu reports said they were still 180 miles away.

EMANUEL CELLER

Solon's Act Would Stop Base Closing

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said Friday he is "positive" the next session of Congress will pass a measure to keep all naval shipyards open by stripping the secretary of defense of his power to allocate funds to private yards.

"I'm very definite about this," Celler said in a telephone interview. "It will come up in the early part of the first session of the 89th Congress," which begins in January.

Celler said the measure, an amendment to the appropriations bill, would "take away the discretionary power of the secretary of defense to allocate appropriations in any amount to private shipyards."

"Under this provision," he said, "it would be essential to allocate half the funds to the public yards. We would intend to keep open all public yards that are now open, unless the communities are willing to have them closed, unless good reasons — far better than those offered by (Secretary of Defense Robert S.) McNamara — compels their closing."

McKeithen Bond Program Voted

World Legislative Bureau

BATON ROUGE — Gov. John J. McKeithen, a former floor leader for the late Earl K. Long, returned to his old role Friday as he personally engineered the passage of a $35-million bond issue in the House, 84-17.

McKeithen sat on a marble slab behind the press desk in the House chamber where he collared lawmakers after lawmakers for votes on the administration bill.

"I almost wrecked the car when I called back in yesterday and learned that the House put this bill back on the calendar,"

McKeithen explained. "I was on my way to New Orleans when I called back in on the car phone."

The House gave McKeithen's floor leaders a rough time Thursday, forcing them to return the bond issue to the calendar after a four-hour debate.

TAKES CONTROL

But McKeithen took control Friday, saying, "Mr. Earl once said I was the best floor leader he ever saw."

At least three lawmakers confessed to the House that they had changed their minds about the bond issue as McKeithen continued his whispered talks on the floor.

"I want to be part of a progressive program," explained Rep. David Patten of Jonesville. "I want to change my mind and vote for this bill."

Patten, who introduced a $200-million bond issue, spoke out against McKeithen's proposal in the Thursday debate.

Rep. John Schwegmann of Jefferson Parish said, "As you know, I've been against bond issues, but after talking to the governor..."

Laughter erupted in the House, but Schwegmann explained, "You can laugh if you want to, but nobody influences John Schwegmann. The problems we have today were caused by the past administrations."

Rep. Larry Parker of Alexandria said since he voted to return the bill to the calendar Thursday he had been through "rough times." He said Rep. Jesse McLain, a committee chairman of St. Tammany Parish and Rep. Lantz Womack, a floor leader from Winnboro, had treated him "like a baby."

"I'm ready to quit fighting them and join them," Parker said.

McKeithen's bond issue would provide revenue for capital outlay at colleges, universities and institutions. Monroe area lawmakers voted in a bloc for it.

Rep. Lawrence Gibbs of Monroe spoke on the floor for the bill as McKeithen sat nearby, chain-smoking a reporter's cigarettes.

Few lawmakers spoke against the bond issues but Rep. Maurice Landrieu, a New Orleans attorney, took the floor against it after talking with McKeithen.

"I am not questioning the integrity of the governor, but we can't run the state on personalities," he said. "With the passage of this bond issue, we weaken and transfer to the administration those responsibilities which we should assume."

The $35-million bond issue would be administered through the State Bond and Building Commission subject to the legislature's approval.

Conway Funds In Bond Issue

World Legislative Bureau

BATON ROUGE — Gov. John J. McKeithen said Friday he would provide funds for improvements at the E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital from a $35-million bond issue.

"After a meeting with the governor, I have been authorized to announce that if the $35-million bond issue passes improvements will be made at our charity hospital at Monroe," explained Rep. Lawrence Gibbs of Monroe.

Gibbs and Rep. George Wood of Monroe voted for the bond issue that passed the House, 84-17.

"I too am aware of the needs at the charity hospital and voted for the bond issue because the revenue will go to our colleges, universities and institutions," Wood said.

Gibbs added, "I support the bond issue as a means of capital outlay for many needed projects in our state."

The bond issue bill now goes to the Senate for a vote.

LINES TO OPEN

Ford, UAW End Parts Plant Halt

DETROIT (AP) — The Ford Motor Co.'s vital Sterling Township (Mich.) parts plant strike was settled Friday night and the company, nearly down to zero in car production, said its closed assembly lines will start moving again next week.

Ford and the United Auto Workers announced the Sterling settlement in separate statements. UAW Local 228 of the Sterling Township plant will hold a ratification meeting Sunday on the settlement terms.

TO START OUTPUT

Ford, which closed off the last of its car production Friday night, said it would take steps immediately to resume production at all its locations except at two Michigan assembly plants still on strike.

The company said all its assembly plants except the two in Michigan — unless the latter strikes are settled in the interim — are expected to be back in production by Nov. 30.

With 80,000 men idle through layoffs or the strikes at the three Michigan plants, Ford's car production hit bottom. Normally Ford makes about 10,000 cars a day.

The production loss was blamed by the company almost entirely on the Sterling Township plant's tieup.

Issues of the strike involved local plant conditions. Settlement terms were not announced, pending the ratification meeting of Local 228 Sunday.

UAW President Walter P. Uthure and Ken Bannon, director of the UAW Ford Department, made the union settlement announcement. The company said the assembly plants which first were closed in the growing shutdown will resume work Tuesday or Wednesday.

The Sterling Township plant has 6,300 workers on strike. It makes chassis parts, axles, suspension parts and drive shafts and the like. Other struck plants are an auto assembly plant at Wayne, Mich., with 1,900 workers, and a truck plant at Wayne, with 1,100 workers.

Swedish Crash Kills 31 People

ANGELHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A Swedish airliner hit a railway power line and crashed in flames near here Friday night while groping for a landing in foul weather.

An official report early today said 31 of the 43 persons aboard were killed outright or died later of injuries.

Two of the survivors were able to walk almost unharmed from the scattered and burning wreckage, witnesses reported.

Some others died in or en route to hospitals in the area which at one time Friday night reported 16 were being treated.

CANADIAN TRIBUTE

Yukon Peak Named For Late President

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada has memorialized John Fitzgerald Kennedy by naming a 14,000-foot mountain in the Yukon near the Alaska border Mt. Kennedy.

Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, announcing the step in the House of Commons, said the government's decision was intended to commemorate the sad anniversary of the American president's death and honor his memory. Pearson's tribute:

"I believe it is appropriate that Canada's memorial to him should be a mountain. A mountain is solid and enduring — and so will be his place in history."

"Mt. Kennedy is a graceful, towering, unnumbered peak. President Kennedy was clean-cut, a man of clarity and direct vision. A mountain is a symbol of aspiration and upward reach. John Kennedy greatly aspired and his reach, as the poet tells us it should be, exceeded his grasp."

Reconsideration Possible Monday

By SAM HANNA
Legislative Writer

BATON ROUGE — The Louisiana House refused to pass a one-cent sales tax Friday for a full-blown teacher pay raise, but the bill was saved for another day as lawmakers went home with problems still unsolved.

With 70 votes needed for passage, the House voted 60-41 on the tax bill before the legislature completed the first week of a 20-day special session called to give the teachers a pay raise.

Rep. Gordon Causey, a Tangipahoa Parish lawmaker who led the introduction of the tax, changed his vote from "yea" to "nay" to bring the bill back on the next legislative day, or at 2 p.m. Monday.

"It's not my intention to give a big fanfare on the plight of the school teachers," said Causey when he brought the bill before the House for final passage. "Each of us is aware of that."

AMENDMENTS FAIL

But it took the House over three hours to get down to voting as numerous amendments were offered but rejected on the tax opposed by Gov. John J. McKeithen and the Louisiana AFL-CIO.

Rep. Lantz Womack, a floor leader from Winnboro, and Rep. W. J. Richardson of Columbia were the only Monroe area solons voting against the bill.

Most of the votes against it were cast by South Louisiana lawmakers where the teachers are threatening most to strike unless their pay is raised.

After the House rejection, McKeithen said the vote indicated that the people of Louisiana were willing for the teachers to receive half-implementation of the proposed schedule.

He said he may not bring up his real estate transfer bill until Wednesday.

McKeithen's floor leaders split on the sales tax with Womack voting against it and Rep. Robert Munson of Cheneyville for it. Speaker Vail M. Delony, Lake Providence, voted for it.

With the expected death of the tax to come Monday, the legislature would be left with an administration measure to expand the two-cent sales tax on real estate transfers involving commercial property.

McKeithen held this bill back Friday apparently to clear the air on the sales tax proposal. But his real estate bill would provide an estimated $18-million for half-implementation of a salary schedule recommended by the United School Committee.

The House passed the USC schedule, 98-0, before adjourning, sending it to the Senate, which returns at 7 p.m. Monday.

The House Ways and Means Committee kept alive a bill by Rep. Ford Stinson, Bossier, to take a one-cent sales tax to the people in a special election February 9th.

This course may be taken by the Legislature in the event that the sales tax and real estate bills are killed.

Before reaching the sales tax bill in a seven-hour session, the House also passed McKeithen's $35-million bond issue, 84-17, and four other administration bills.

A bill closing up tax loopholes in the casual sale of automobiles passed, 89-9, while the House also voted 98-0 on the USC schedule for school bus drivers.

The House, in a 95-7 vote, passed an administration measure placing the two-cent sales tax on wholesalers on sales to retailers, but McKeithen's floor leaders ran into brisk opposition on a bill to permit local school boards to levy sales taxes.

"This is the only hope we have," said Rep. Percy Branton of Webster Parish, speaking for the bill giving boards authority to levy sales taxes. "We will never pass the tax bills."

But Rep. David Patten of Jonesville said, "It's a very dangerous bill for us country boys. In Catahoula Parish, we couldn't raise enough revenue to pay the teachers."

Rep. Max Maxwell of Urania added, "It may be that the country parishes will be at a disadvantage at hiring teachers because of their inability to raise the revenue. We will be competing."

Gibbs amended the bill so that parishes with dual school systems, like Ouachita, would be restricted to one tax.

The House bowed down on the one-cent sales tax bill when Rep. Allen C. Gremlion of Acadia Parish offered amendments to dedicate part of the revenue toward a $5 per month increase for old age recipients and about $10 million to farm-to-market roads.

"This should make it better for you boys from the laboring parishes," said Rep. W. K. Brown of Grant Parish. "It'll make it easier for you to vote for."

Most of the votes against the sales tax came from the urban areas, particularly Orleans Parish where only one solon in the delegation voted for it.

Gremlion's amendments failed on a tie vote, 49-49.

Rep. Risley Triche of Napoleonville came back with amendments to exempt foods, medicine and drugs, which Triche said would make the tax "equitable."

This, however, touched off a lively round of debate as Rep. Jesse McLain, a St. Tammany Parish solon who was not around when the final vote was taken, asked Triche:

"Over in my country we buy beer and a little wine. Would this exempt that?"

Triche replied, "No Mr. McLain, alcoholic beverages are not food."

Womack got into the discussion, saying, "My parish is dry, pappy. But the doctor writes a prescription and you take it in and get it filled with whiskey, take it as prescribed and refill it when you need it."

"You don't have a doctor like that in your parish," Triche answered.

Triche's amendments were rejected, 13-83, after the House had recessed for a 30-minute power failure.

After returning from the recess, the House got into a more serious mood as Rep. William Polk, Alexandria, said, "We've either got to give these teachers a raise or pack up and go home."

Viet Cong Strike
In Sudden Attack

BOI LOI FOREST, South Viet Nam (AP) — Communist guerrillas rose out of the ground Friday and dealt a bloody blow to a large Vietnamese government force that had been looking for them since Tuesday.

The Communist guerrillas had been hiding in tunnels—some of them three levels deep—while a 7,000-man government force swept through the abandoned rubber forest above them.

As two battalions of paratroopers doubled back, the Viet Cong emerged. During the fighting, 10 government troops were killed and 30 wounded. Two Viet Cong cornered in tunnels were slain.

The Reds then shot down a Vietnamese medical evacuation helicopter carrying seven wounded paratroopers and a crew of four.

Only the pilot escaped. "We found the badly burned pilot and a burned hand, that was all," said Capt. Carman Negaard from Lawton, N.D., an adviser to the 3rd Vietnamese Battalion.

It was the first clash since government forces launched Tuesday their Boi Loi "Operation Brushfire." It turned into a series of government pursuits and quickly sprung Viet Cong ambushes. The Reds brought mortars and machine guns up out of their tunnels.

As Negaard talked to newsmen near the downed helicopter, enemy mortar shells started whizzing down only 200 yards away.

"You better get out of here," the American captain yelled.

Earlier he told newsmen: "There are just too many tunnels. We just can't root them out of there."

"We have followed many Viet Cong down the tunnels, but they escape through hidden side exits. And when we emerge from these tunnels they pop up and shoot at us," he said.

Haggard and unshaven after four days in the jungle, he said that because of mounting casualties "We are pulling out and leaving it to the bombers and helicopters."

Minutes later Vietnamese bombers splashed fiery napalm on Viet Cong positions north of the paratroopers. Artillery also was booming.

The Operation Brushfire commander, Maj. Gen. Ton Tat

Dinh, hailed the clash with the Viet Cong as a dividend for doubling back over the same area. "We trapped the Viet Cong in Boi Loi Forest because we returned there," he said, "And look what we found."

U.S. advisers said, however, it was more a question of who found whom.

Three smaller operations had better luck. Helicopter sorties in Quang Nam Province 370 miles north of Saigon left 93 Viet Cong dead, American military sources reported.

The last of the three operations was launched shortly after sunrise when one company of government troops made ground contact with two companies of Viet Cong. Elements of a government battalion were airlifted into the battle zone by U.S. Marine helicopters. Late reports said 36 Viet Cong had been slain.

Government losses in that operation were given as 14 wounded.

Counts against Herbert Dickard, 2126 Pargoud Blvd., and Charles Rawls, 27, 117 1/2 S. 5th St., were discharged.

Forfeiting bonds for speeding were Robert Hines Jr., 28, 3009 1/2 Elm St., $5; Delores Lindsey, 20, Rt. 4, West Monroe, $5; and Willie T. Reed, 34, 1300 1/2 Washington St., $25.

Other counts handled included minor traffic violations.

Three Persons
Hospitalized
After Accident

Three persons were hospitalized, one with serious injuries, after a two-car collision near a West Monroe shopping center about noon Friday.

Listed in serious condition in Glenwood Hospital is Mrs. Nina Boyte, 20, 35 Lilac St., West Monroe. Investigating officials reported she was thrown from her car by force of the impact and suffered internal injuries.

Also admitted to the hospital was Deborah Ann Boyte, three months old, who suffered severe head lacerations and other possible injuries.

Glenda A. Womack, 20, 1005 Glenwood Dr., West Monroe, driver of the other vehicle involved, was admitted to the hospital also where her condition late Friday was described as "good."

Police said the accident occurred when the Boyte vehicle, traveling east on McGuire Street near the Highland Shopping Center, apparently ran a stop sign, colliding with the Womack car going south on Lincoln Street.

The Boyte woman was ticketed for reckless driving and causing a wreck.

Makers Of Alliance
Study Arms Control

PARIS (AP) — Atlantic alliance legislators approved Friday a resolution "to explore in detail" any proposal for joint control of nuclear armament.

On a hand vote, 27 delegates to the 10th annual NATO parliamentary conference voted for the proposal and 13 abstained.

There were no negative votes. Those abstaining were mostly Danish, Icelandic and Belgian delegates to the 15-member state conference.

The resolution was drafted in backstage negotiations two days ago by leaders of the American, French, West German and British delegations.

Proponents and opponents of the controversial multilateral nuclear force (MLF) project agreed on this approach pending proposals expected shortly from the new British government and pending the top-level meeting in Washington early next month between President Johnson and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

MLF is an American idea strongly backed by West Germany which wanted the mixed manned surface fleet of 25 ships armed with Polaris missiles implemented this year.

The Germans have agreed to back off pushing for the force immediately. The French have been categorically against it.

The closing conference session heard a letter from President Johnson, replying to an invitation from retiring conference chairman Georg Kiesing of West Germany to address the NATO parliamentarians. Before he became vice president, Johnson had attended earlier conferences.

Johnson respectfully declined the invitation and said the press of post-election business in

Traffic Death
Suit Is Filed

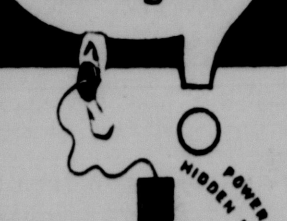

SHREVEPORT (Special) — An Arkansas woman Friday filed a $25,000 damage suit in the Monroe Division of federal district court against the U. S. Government as the result of the death last April of her brother following a traffic accident near Tallulah involving a deputy U. S. marshal from Florida.

Mrs. Lula Mae Vaughn of Stuttgart, Ark., filed the suit as sister of Bonnie S. Cain, who died two days after the Apr. 22 accident. Cain was a passenger in a car driven by Wilford H. Vance.

The woman claims the other car was driven by Deputy U. S. Marshal Loren Wideman of Miami, Fla., whom she said was transporting prisoners for federal court of the southern district of Florida.

The accident was seven miles east of Tallulah.

Roy Howard, News Veteran Dies Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy W. Howard, chairman of the executive committee of Scripps-Howard Newspapers, died here Friday night.

A spokesman said Howard, 81, suffered a massive coronary in his Park Avenue office and was rushed to Doctor's Hospital. He died there about three hours later.

Ben Foster, an aide to Howard, said he was unable to determine immediately who was at Howard's bedside when death came.

In 1960, Howard retired as editor of the New York World-Telegram and the Sun, a post he held for 33 years.

He continued as director of the New York World-Telegram Corp., the company which publishes the newspaper.

Howard resigned in 1953 as president of the Scripps-Howard group of newspapers, including the World-Telegram and the Sun, to become chairman of the group's executive committee.

At the time he left the newspaper editorship, Howard issued a statement in which he said:

"While I am taking this step voluntarily after taking a hard look at the calendar, to say I am doing so without regret would be absurd."

In the same statement, Howard said: "However, it is quite accurate to say that I am taking the step with great satisfaction and complete confidence in the paper's future."

It was with E.W. Scripps that Howard joined to build up the newspaper chain.

Scripps once said of Howard: "His manner was forceful and the reverse of modest. Gall was written all over his face. It was in every tone and every word he voiced."

Scripps said Howard had "ambition, self-respect and forcefulness," and added that Howard never would "get indigestion from licking my boots."

Scripps died in 1926. Howard had worked with the Scripps organization since 1905 when he joined the staff of the Cincinnati Post.

The Post was part of what then was known as the Scripps-McRae group of newspapers, and Howard talked himself into the post of New York correspondent for the chain.

When Scripps purchased the Publishers Press that operated at the time on the eastern seaboard, Howard took over its news management.

In 1907, Howard was named managing editor of the United Press, when it was formed. Five years later, he became directing head of United Press. He was only 29 at the time.

He was often described by his associates as a bundle of energy and enterprise who worked long hours and was able to handle just about every job in a newspaper plant and press association.

Despite the press of organizational duties that carried him across the nation and to distant sections of the world, Howard managed to find time to keep his fingers on the news report.

Just before the end of World War I, Howard found himself in the center of what has been termed "one of the most amazing journalistic contretemps in history."

This was the description given to his having prematurely reported the signing of the Armistice on Nov. 7, 1918, four days before the war officially was called to an end.

DAR Memorial Services Slated This Afternoon

Memorial services will be held by Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, for Mrs. Mattie McClendon Hamilton, deceased charter member of the local group.

The services have been set for 2 p.m. today at the grave site at Hasley Cemetery. A DAR grave marker will be placed there with her name and the name of the chapter inscribed. Mrs. Mattie McGee Stewart, chapter chaplain, will be in charge of the ceremonies. Relatives and friends of Mrs. Hamilton are invited to join chapter members in the memorial to Mrs. Hamilton.

Mrs. Hamilton, known to her friends as "Tee," was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. F. McClendon and lived most of her life in West Monroe. She was a member of the first graduating class of Ouachita Parish High School.

The late charter member, who died Sunday, Aug. 30, this year, was married to Isaac Henry Hamilton on June 24, 1908.

She is survived by two sons, I. H. (Ike) Hamilton Jr. of West Monroe and F. W. (Bud) Hamilton of Jackson, Tenn. and five grandchildren.

LBJ Wants Cutting Of Desalting Costs

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson ordered a crash research program Friday in an effort to bring down the cost of claiming fresh water from the sea by 1969.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said Johnson told him he wants no penny-pinching in the program because he seeks a cost-cutting breakthrough during his four-year administration.

Udall, who spent a day at the President's ranch home near here, also said Johnson wants to put increased emphasis on conservation as part of his "great society" concept.

The stepped-up conservation program, Udall told a news conference, will include beautification of highways and a study to determine whether surplus military lands might be used for conservation.

Asked whether he intends to remain in the Johnson Cabinet, Udall said: "Yes, I do. And after my visit today I'll stay with a real sense of excitement."

Johnson conferred with Udall after returning from a flying trip to San Marcos, 50 miles away, where he pledged anew an all-out war on poverty as a major goal of the "great society," he envisions.

Udall said Johnson will ask Congress in January for a supplemental appropriation of $16 million for research in water desalting. This, if approved, will more than double the present $12 million rate of spending during this fiscal year.

Udall also reported Johnson has directed that he and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara conduct an inventory of 24 million acres of military lands to determine which of them, should they become surplus, would fit into the conservation program on the federal, state or local level.

He said Johnson is anxious to make landscaping and beautification of the vast interstate highway system a part of his "great society" proposals that will go to Congress next year.

Udall said engineers hope they eventually will be able to convert salt and brackish water into fresh water for as little as 25 to 35 cents a thousand gallons. To achieve this, he said, it will be necessary to build plants many times larger than the five experimental plants now in operation. The three biggest of these have a capacity of a million gallons a day at a cost of $1 per thousand gallons.

Udall said experts believe plants with a capacity of 40 to 50 million gallons a day can be built in the future, and that some might even go as high as 150 million gallons.

Speaking at Southwest Texas State College, from which he was graduated 34 years ago, Johnson said his concept of a great society is realistic and attainable — "not an idle dream or vague Utopia."

"Even the greatest of past societies were founded upon the exploitation and misery of many," Johnson said. "We can be the first to enrich the quality of the life of all."

Johnson said his program "has concrete goals and will require specific programs."

"Even as we meet," he continued, "some of those programs are being prepared for my review."

"They will attack the problems of making cities a decent place to live. They will seek to preserve the beauty of the land. They will strive to make it possible for every child born in this country to receive an education of the highest quality to the limit of his ability — no matter how poor he is, no matter where he lives, no matter on which side of the tracks he was born."

Johnson spoke at the inauguration of James Henry McCrackin as the president of Southwest Texas State College and announced that this community will have the first Job Corps training center under the antipoverty program.

"Next we must move to enlarge the horizons of all Americans. This effort is the pursuit of the great society. It is founded upon the basic idea that the ultimate test of any society is the quality of the men and women it produces and the quality of the life they are permitted to lead."

High Level Soviet-U.S. Talks Coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of high-level U. S.-Soviet talks at the United Nations next month developed Friday night with word that Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is expected to attend the General Assembly session opening Dec. 1.

Soviet diplomatic sources said they anticipate Gromyko will be in New York about the time the session begins.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk also has plans to go to the United Nations for the first couple weeks of the session. He is tentatively slated to go to New York Nov. 29.

U. S. sources said they would expect that Rusk would be meeting with Gromyko, as he has on past occasions at the United Nations.

A U. S.-Soviet discussion at the foreign minister level would be the first since the new regime came into power in Moscow.

Also, a showdown is shaping up at the United Nations this year over Soviet refusal to pay dues attributable to U.N. peace-keeping costs.

Washington holds that the Russians should pay up or lose their General Assembly vote, as stipulated in the U.N. charter. Efforts at a compromise solution have failed so far.

The U. S. ambassador to Moscow, Foy Kohler, returned to Washington Friday and began consultations with State Department officials. He is expected to go on leave after concluding his Washington business, then return to Moscow early next year.

State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said the United States "would certainly welcome any willingness on the part of the Soviet Union to settle its lend-lease debts with the United States."

This was his comment on a report that the new Soviet premier, Alexei Kosygin, suggested to some visiting U. S. businessmen in Moscow that the Soviets are willing to make some lend-lease repayments.

The long-outstanding lend-lease debt has been a major obstacle to the improvement of U. S.-Soviet trade.

It was not immediately known whether trade would be a topic for discussion in any Rusk-Gromyko meeting at the United Nations.

A related subject is the proposal for a commercial air route between New York and Moscow. U. S. and Soviet negotiators initiated an agreement for an air link in 1951, but the pact never has been formally signed.

Why was the rooster used for the Democratic emblem in the recent general election in Louisiana, since the national party emblem is the donkey?

The Democratic Party emblem for Louisiana is the rooster. This is the symbolic trademark for Louisiana Democrats. Actually, you were not voting for the national party officials in the recent election. You were voting for electors who will then cast votes for the national candidates. Since the electors were candidates representing the state party, the state party's emblem was used.

How can a motorist be safe with regard to speed laws if he is not acquainted with the various speed requirements in different places?

We have published your request in hopes that it might attract the attention of anyone interested in joining such a group. Since you did not include your name or how you could be contacted, we suggest that you check around high school clubs, church youth groups and local recreation centers for people who might share a similar interest in such music. You might also post notices in these places, if permissible, including your name and telephone number and asking interested boys to get in touch with you. Local music dealers and boys who already have such groups might also be willing to supply you with leads.

LONDON (AP) — The National Gallery has bought a Cezanne painting for $1.4 million, by far the highest price known to have been paid for a work by the French master and believed to be the highest price ever paid for an Impressionist painting. The painting is "Les Grandes Baigneuses," a late Cezanne, acquired from the heirs of Auguste Pellerin of Paris. It shows 10 nude women bathing. The highest public price ever paid for a Cezanne was $616,000 for "Garçon au Gilet Rouge" at a Sotheby's auction six years ago. Niall MacDermot, financial secretary of the gallery, made the purchase public Friday. The government is to make a special grant of $350,000 toward the cost.

Tax Rebates States' Need, Sanders Says

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gov. Carl E. Sanders of Georgia urged state leaders Friday night to support a proposed federal tax rebate program which he said would go far toward restoration of state's rights.

Sanders, in a speech prepared for the National Conference of State and Legislative Leaders here, said the program would provide funds with which to start or complete vital state programs and which would then be financed without federal strings.

The program, announced last month by President Lyndon B. Johnson, "would do much toward setting a proper and workable balance between the state and federal governments," he added.

Sanders told the leaders from throughout the nation that in nearly all states the pace of activity set by the governor is the prime factor in legislative activity.

"Because the governor is judged principally on the basis of his legislative program, he must always try to make the activities of the state fulfill the needs of the times," the Georgia governor said.

He stressed that the program presented to the legislature is usually an outline of needs arrived at through the governor's personal communications with the members of the legislature.

"Once the session is under way, however, it is the governor who must educate the legislators as to the people's needs on a statewide basis," Sanders said.

A governor's philosophy is on the firing line every day the legislature is in session and every time he tries to pass his program, Sanders said.

"The successful operation of government," he said, "toward its goal of preserving liberty and realizing democracy depends upon the due balancing of power between the executive and legislative branches."

Earlier in the day, Maryland Public Welfare Director Raleigh C. Hobson told the conference that states and cities cannot conduct good welfare programs on a cut-rate basis.

"In many states the public welfare program has been treated as necessary evil, a stepchild in the governmental family," he said.

"As a result, the administration of public welfare has been hampered and the results have been exactly the opposite hoped for," he said.

Hobson urged adoption of modern, electronic bookkeeping systems, salaries adequate to hold qualified personnel and long-range planning to give welfare programs continuity.

Sanders' address concluded the three-day conference.

Waggoner Sets Talk At Tech

Prior to the foundation's meeting in the center, a session of the organization's directors will be held. During the business meeting, Grady C. Jones Jr., of Ruston, formerly of El Dorado, will be presented the foundation's graduate student scholarship. Jones was graduated with scholastic honors from Tech with a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering in January, 1964, and now is working on a master's degree at Tech.

The engineering foundation, a non-profit organization sponsoring the development of Tech's School of Engineering, will hear Waggoner speak as a member of the House Science and Astronautics Committee. He formerly was a member of the State Board of Education from the Third Public Service Commission District.

Red Chinese Lay Down Tough Unity Demands

TOKYO (AP) — Red China warned the Soviet Union today against "Khrushchevism without Khrushchev" and laid down a long set of tough terms that could make solution of the Moscow-Peking dispute virtually impossible.

Peking hailed the downfall in October of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev as the end for "a buffoon on the contemporary stage," but it also launched a heavy attack on Soviet policies, which the new Moscow regime has said it will continue.

The Chinese announced in advance they were broadcasting an important statement before transmitting a violent editorial by Red Flag, official theoretical journal of the Chinese Communist party. It raised against Khrushchev "hundreds of thousands of charges."

The editorial had the sound of a form of ultimatum to the new Soviet regime under party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to abandon all those policies developed under Khrushchev — including peaceful coexistence and cooperation in any form with the United States — which aggravated Peking over the past eight years.

The denunciation of all the policies — including de-Stalinization, which the new Soviet government purports to uphold — left the impression that the recent Moscow meeting of Soviet and Chinese leaders had failed to bring about anything approaching a meeting of minds.

The Chinese warned against any who would resurrect Khrushchev or pay tribute to Khrushchev's contributions and deeds, so that "Khrushchevism without Khrushchev may prevail." The article, entitled "Why Khrushchev Fell," listed scores of charges against the Khrushchev regime, many of which could be equally attributed even now to Khrushchev's successors.

Among the charges: 1. He "railed at Stalin, the leader of the Communist party of the Soviet Union and the Soviet people, and in opposing Stalin he opposed Marxism-Leninism. In so doing, Khrushchev provided the imperialists and reactionaries of all countries with the dirtiest of weapons for their anti-Soviet, anti-Communist activities."

2. In open violation of Communist world agreements, he "sought all-round cooperation with U.S. imperialism and fallaciously maintained that the heads of the Soviet Union and the United States would decide the fate of humanity, constantly praising the chiefs of U.S. imperialism as having a sincere desire for peace."

3. He placed missiles in Cuba and then "docilely withdrew the missiles and bombers from Cuba on the order of the U.S. pirates."

4. He catered "to the U.S. imperialist policy of nuclear blackmail to prevent Socialist China from building up her own nuclear strength."

5. "He did not hesitate to damage the defense capabilities of the Soviet Union itself and concluded the so-called partial nuclear test ban treaty in collusion with two imperialist powers, the United States and Britain."

6. He advocated "peaceful transition" to Communist power for parties in advanced countries, a line which "paralyzes the revolutionary will of the proletariat."

7. For the sake of peaceful coexistence, he "did his utmost to sabotage the national liberation movement." This is the Communist term for movements in Asia, Africa and Latin America which are anti-American in purpose.

8. He brought about reconciliation with "the renegade Tito clique" of Yugoslavia, "describing Tito, who had degenerated into a lackey of U.S. imperialism, as a Marxist-Leninist and Yugoslavia, which had degenerated into a capitalist country, as a Socialist country."

9. He broke relations with Communist Albania, Albania has supported Red China all through the dispute and often has been its voice in the argument. The Albanians now claim that while Khrushchev is gone, the "modern revisionists" remain in Moscow in places of power.

10. He "nourished an inveterate hatred for the Communist party of China, and spread innumerable rumors and slanders against Comrade Mao Tse-tung, resorting to every kind of baseness in his futile attempt to subvert Socialist China."

11. He tried to force Communist nations into the council for economic mutual relations a Soviet plan aimed at coordinating Communist economies.

OPENS SESSION TOKYO (UPI)—Emperor Hirohito opened a session of the Japanese Parliament Friday, the first under the government of new Premier Eisaku Sato. Sato is expected to make his first policy speech Monday.

Council Fathers Vote To Clear Jews Of Guilt

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Ecumenical Council Friday closed its third session work with the endorsement of a historic declaration clearing the Jewish people of centuries-old charges of deicide in the crucifixion of Christ.

But American and other liberal prelates were disappointed Pope Paul's rejection of their appeal for an immediate vote on the controversial declaration on religious liberty. More than 1,000 council fathers had signed a petition to the Pope protesting a conservative ruling blocking action at this session.

Cardinals and bishops in St. Peter's Basilica gave massive approval to a charter for promoting Christian unity which the Pope will promulgate at the public closing ceremonies Saturday. Final approval of the document titled "On Ecumenism" was 2,054 to 64.

The council fathers also showed near unanimity in the voting on the document dealing with relations between the Catholic Church and other Christian faiths, and Jews, Hindus, Moslems and Buddhists. The vote on the overall document was 1,657 to 99, with 242 "yes with reservations."

On the key section, which states people of the Jewish faith never must be considered cursed or specially guilty for the crucifixion, the vote was 1,770 to 185. Most of the opposition came from prelates representing the Arab countries.

The declaration was designed to remove one of the historic roots of anti-Semitism. It also condemned discrimination of peoples because of race, color or creed.

The document will not be promulgated Saturday despite the overwhelming approval because the votes were preliminary ones. Before the fourth session the document may be revised to meet some of the reservations. The pontiff will promulgate today a major new doctrinal treatment of the nature of the church, titled "De Ecclesia" (On The Church) with the Ecumenism decree and proposals on Eastern Catholic Churches which were approved at the closing meeting.

The declaration on religious liberty, by the Pope's own decision, also will be debated at the fourth session for which a date has not been set. Like the document on the Jews and other non-Christians, the declaration has met heavy resistance from conservative fathers.

The declaration would put the Catholic Church officially on record for the first time as favoring freedom of religion for all peoples. Catholics have been accused in the past of favoring religious liberty where they are in a minority while seeking favored status for the church where they have the political power, in Spain and Portugal, for example.

American bishops spearheaded the drive for the declaration, which was drafted mainly by the Rev. John Courtney Murray, Jesuit scholar of Woodstock College, Woodstock, Md. The declaration would uphold the right of every individual to follow the dictates of conscience in choosing a religion. In sum, the declaration would put the church on record in support of the rights of religious freedom guaranteed in the United States under the First Amendment to the Constitution.

Better Businessmen

The business colleges of many of the nation's universities have from time to time come under severe criticism by educators and by some businessmen themselves for their failure to produce businessmen and executives with liberal educations that fit them to be the best sort of citizens as well as executives.

In short, such schools have been accused of producing narrow-minded moneygrubbers.

How many business schools are guilty of this and the extent to which they have gone in narrowing the intellectual span of the students never has been quite clear. But the questions have been of sufficient importance to have been made the subject of a report by the Committee For Economic Development, a non-profit, nonpolitical research and education organization made up of 200 businessmen and educators.

The CED says that even though a great deal of self-examination and constructive change has taken place in business education in recent years, the criticisms leveled at both the undergraduate schools of business have "widespread foundation."

Not all of the students enrolled in business schools will become top executives, of course, but a large number of them will rise to important levels of business administration where they will need to know more than the technical aspects of business. They will need to be able to understand people and work with them effectively. They will need to be able to communicate. They will need to know how to approach and solve problems effectively. And they will need to know how to use their talents in areas beyond their businesses.

The improvements the CED recommends are broad and will require considerable time to put into effect. But the fact that the CED has taken the trouble to point out the shortcomings of some of these schools and to suggest these improvements is in itself an indication that better businessmen will be produced in the future.

Farmers As Grocerymen

The Ohio Farm Bureau Federation is proposing that the American Farm Bureau buy a grocery chain — so the farmer will have "something to say about the prices for his products."

The idea is not entirely new, for farm groups long have been engaged in consumer co-operatives with their own automobile and truck service stations, grocery stores, building supply outlets and even their own mortuaries. But all these have been on a regional basis. This is the first time any farm group has proposed moving so boldly into the retail and wholesale grocery business.

Ordinarily such a proposal would be brushed off as a pipe dream, but because it comes from the Ohio Farm Bureau it is receiving some serious consideration. This is because the Ohio Farm Bureau has been known as a builder of national businesses. Under its one-time leader Murray Lincoln, the OFBF laid the groundwork for an insurance business which since has grown into the firm known as the Nationwide Mutual Insurance Companies. It also established Landmark Company, a large co-operative for buying and selling farm products.

So the OFBF knows something about city business as well as farming.

The present move, apparently grows out of the extension of chain groceries into the farmers' fields. The chains have gone rather heavily into the cattle feeding business in recent years, for example, and the farmers have from time to time charged that the national grocery chains actually control meat prices through such feeding activities.

But the Farm Bureau would do well to take a very close look at the grocery business before jumping into it with both feet. The grocery business in considered by many business observers to be over-expanded at present and overly competitive. As a result, margins for the most part are slim and management must be of the very best to avoid disaster.

Taking on such a precarious business at this time would not be like developing a national insurance business from the ground up.

In fact the farmer has no business whatsoever of entering into the retail grocery business.

Help For Small Town

The national administrator of the Farmers Home Administration, Howard Bertsch, is concerned because many people are talking about "teaching small towns to die gracefully."

He maintains there are and always will be some things that farmers need which can be obtained only in the small town. Such communities, he says, make rural America strong because they preserve the close working and living relationships between people. They provide schools, churches and organizations that represent the interests of the farmers and enlarge their lives.

There is much to be said for Mr. Bertsch's point of view and not just because he happens to head an agency which has as part of its task the work of providing help to keep such small towns alive.

It is true that the rural communities have suffered from many years of loss of resources. The products, the money and the people of the rural communities all have moved toward the metropolitan centers and there has been little movement of resources in the opposite direction.

For some rural areas, this siphoning off of resources has gone so far that it is no longer possible to salvage the communities. There comes a point where the resources and population remaining simply are not sufficient to support the institutions and the government.

But there remain many attractive rural communities which are being threatened by this continuing loss of resources. Careful selection of such communities and the co-operation of those who have remained in them can lead to the development of small towns which once again will be attractive places in which to live and do business.

In Only 40 Years

We have lived in the jet age of international travel long enough to take it for granted. To the younger part of our population there's nothing at all remarkable about being able to go almost anywhere in the world in a matter of hours.

Yet, strange as it may seem to those whose memories do not go so far back, the first successful round the world flight took place only 40 years ago — a mere tick of the clock as history runs. A venture of the Army Air Service, it began on St. Patrick's day, 1924, at a California field. It ended six months and six days later, on September 23. Actual flying time for the 25,553 mile flight was 371 hours, which works out to the then respectable speed of about 70 miles an hour. All the rest of the time was accounted for by repairs and maintenance and other delays.

This was a great achievement which was to have a far-reaching significance. As Rolla Crick writes in the Portland, Oregon, Journal, "The feat demonstrated that world air travel was feasible and it gave the fledgling American aircraft industry a boost at a critical period. . . . Too, it stimulated the public imagination and more and more people looked ahead to the day when they would be able to cross oceans and continents by air. Soon our own international airline, Pan American, began blazing new trails to other lands, with a pioneering spirit that never has faltered."

Battle Over Press Secretary

Fussin' And Feudin' Fascinating Capital No End

WASHINGTON — The outwardly sedate and decorous White House palace guard is seething with some of the scrappiest "fussin' and feudin'" the fascinated capital has relished in quite a while.

Two "name" personalities of the executive staff are at it hot and heavy — apparently over one of their jobs.

They are George Reedy, shaggy, deliberate, long-time press secretary of the President, and Elizabeth (Liz) Carpenter, brisk, whip-smart "press secretary and staff director" of Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson.

From what Reedy is aggrievedly telling old newspaper friends, he strongly suspects Liz of designs on his passionately treasured job.

This is icily denied by Liz. At the same time, certain individuals close to her are making it their business to drop broad hints, where presumably they will do the most good (reporters), that the President is considering replacing Reedy with a woman, and the most likely choice is Liz.

With the thunderous fusillade of the election battle over, Washington, which revels in backstage intrigues and rhu-ras, is following this one with intense delight and absorption.

Bets are even being offered on the outcome.

AN UNUSUAL facet of this torrid battle is that the press is one of the main battlegrounds. Both sides are busily resorting to it for attacks and counterattacks through carefully planted "leaks," rumors and other stratagems.

On one occasion, both Reedy and Liz phoned contacts on a national publication complaining about the other. The two correspondents discovered these rival versions when they sought each other's counsel on what to do about the unwanted confidences.

MILITANT FEMINIST — As this backstage affair is unfolding it appears that Liz has two ambitions:

To become THE press secretary of the White House, and to make her good friend, Mrs. Esther Peterson, assistant secretary of labor, and special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, the secretary of labor.

An ardent feminist, it is Liz' fond hope to see Mrs. Peterson, a militant liberal, installed as the first woman member of the Johnson Cabinet.

It goes without saying this fervent aspiration is heartily shared by Mrs. Peterson. Also that she is doing her utmost to further Liz' yearning to be the President's press secretary.

As Mrs. Peterson has an office directly across from the White House and sees the President from time to time, she is in an excellent position to boost Liz.

All this is not lost on Reedy.

That's how he pinpointed the source of the recent flurry of news stories that he was weary of his strenuous job and had asked the President to be given something else. Reedy flatly denied that to old press friends.

With unusual feeling he told them that throughout the many years he had worked for Johnson, he was steadfastly convinced that Johnson would sometime be President and Reedy would be the White House press secretary. This had been a long-cherished dream, and neither he nor the President had any thought of shattering it now.

Quite the contrary, Reedy pointed out that, at the express request of the President, he has taken over some of the functions of Walter Jenkins since his explosive resignation as assistant to the President.

"These new duties," stressed Reedy, "are in addition to my work as the President's press secretary."

A close friend of Liz, invited to the LBJ ranch recently, urged the women reporters present to tell both the First Lady and the President how highly they regarded Liz. Without exception, they do. So it was easy for them to comply with this "suggestion."

One told Mrs. Johnson, "We wouldn't know what to do without Liz. She is invaluable, and we want you to know what a wonderful job she is doing and how grateful we are."

"Liz is a wonderful person," heartily agreed the First Lady. "What I particularly like about her is that she is so elastic. She will suggest six or seven bright ideas, which I often reject. But that doesn't discourage her. She will come up with another, which usually is just what I want and which I accept."

The First Lady has continued in close touch with the family of Walter Jenkins. She talks to Mrs. Jenkins by phone, and is making certain they are all well cared for.

AN EARLY CHRISTMAS GIFT — James Rowley, head of the Secret Service, is breathing a big sigh of relief.

President Johnson indirectly has indicated he is well satisfied with the way the Secret Service handled his protection during the recent stormy campaign, and apparently doesn't intend to strip that agency of this traditional function.

The President passed out this good news by calling in the Secret Service guards who accompanied him during his electioneering and warmly lauded them.

Captain Truman Rides Again On TV

GOOD - NATURED AMERICANS — that is to say, most Americans — have, during the past years, generally supposed that Mr. Harry Truman has been overtaken by a sort of creeping decency. Mr. Harry Truman's television show will go far to dispel that illusion, and to remind us sharply of those dismal personal limitations which caused Mr. Truman, at the time he left office in 1952, to depart from Washington an almost universally recognized failure.

The polls, one remembers, show that during the spring and summer of 1952 he held a very low rating with the American people, considerably lower than Mr. Goldwater's, as recorded a few weeks ago. Once out of office, Mr. Truman didn't seem so bad. In his morning walks and on television, his crotchiness seemed almost endearing, and it was gradually assumed that whatever mistakes he made as President, he is a jolly good fellow.

On the television show in question Mr. Truman went after his departed adversary Douglas MacArthur. Not once did he acknowledge the accomplishments of a man manifestly better qualified than himself to lead. Instead, Mr. Truman satisfied himself a) to make a tired wisecrack or two about MacArthur, b) to reiterate a dangerously mistaken view of foreign policy, and — this is Mr. Truman at his embarrassing worst — c) to shower upon his own head a cloudburst of heavenly praise.

He said a) — in the course of his general derogation of Douglas MacArthur — that when he landed again at Luzon, consummating his pledge to return to the Philippines, it was generally quoted by the local GI's that whereas Admiral Nimitz had confessed to MacArthur that he did not know how to swim, MacArthur confided that he did not know how to walk on water. A good barracks room story, that went the rounds in the late forties, a perfectly healthy bit of iconoclasm. On the understanding, however, that such stories are for the troops, to give them a little relief from the general apothecosis: they are not for commanders-in-chief to tell on coast-to-coast TV. It is as though Winston Churchill, commenting on a public occasion on the fliers' role during the Battle of Britain, had remarked over TV that the young men were not only the fathers of British freedom, but also of a considerable percentage of the British population.

MR. TRUMAN SAID b) that General MacArthur, in advocating the hot pursuit of Red Chinese airplanes into Manchuria, and the bombing of Manchurian air bases, was advocating in effect a third world war. "If we crossed the Yalu River into Communist China or bombed Manchuria, the Russians would have come to the aid of the Chinese and that would have immediately brought on a third world war." Q.E.D. What is wrong with that analysis is roughly speaking everything. To begin with, in 1951 the Russians could not have sustained a third world war and most certainly would not have undertaken to fight one, against the overwhelmingly superior odds of America's nuclear striking force. During the period in question China was hardly in a position to withstand nuclear retaliation by the United States. Nor was the Soviet Union. Even at age 80, Mr. Truman apparently has not learned the critical role that Russian bluff played in foreign policy during the Truman years. And then the suggestion that Mr. Truman knew more than General MacArthur about the worldwide military situation suggests how hard Mr. Truman is bitten by the superstitious view of the anointing magic that the Presidency confers, even on a man who had theretofore been a prairie politician whose entire military experience was as a captain in the American Expeditionary Forces in World War I.

INDEED, c) CAPTAIN Truman, that night, pulled rank in the rankest sense. He went, recalled Mr. Truman, to Wake Island to see MacArthur. "Some of the boys said he didn't even salute me" when MacArthur met Truman at the plane. "I didn't give a — whether he saluted me or not." All Mr. Truman cared about, he said, was the peace of the world. Obviously, Mr. Truman, who became the most rank-conscious American President in modern history, gave several — about what was almost certainly an oversight. The trouble with MacArthur, Truman concluded, was that "he thought he was greater than the President of the United States." There is no doubt in most minds that General MacArthur was far greater, by any relevant standard, than the incumbent President of the United States. It is a matter of history that General MacArthur did not consider any office he held as being "greater" than the Presidency of the United States. He did not disobey orders. He gave up his post instantly on being relieved of it. He pressed his military views on President-elect Eisenhower a year later, and when Mr. Eisenhower declined to accept them, he in turn declined to criticize Mr. Eisenhower publicly: he was always the soldier, but of a strain of soldiery great beyond the powers of Mr. Truman to understand, who therefore contents himself with pettifogging posthumous allusions to the man whose personal and intellectual breadth must always, in his superior capacity as commander-in-chief, have made Mr. Truman a little uncomfortable. MacArthur, during his lifetime, forebore personal criticism of Mr. Truman. It was only after his death that an interview was publicized in which MacArthur had confessed his admiration of Truman as a "gutsy littleascal." It takes precisely those qualities to attempt to do to MacArthur and MacArthur's reputation what Mr. Truman has just attempted.

Washington Quiet Between Sessions

THE ALL BUT EMPTY corridors of House and Senate office buildings echo hollowly to the steps of the defeated Congressmen and Senators who failed to win re-election seem to be haunting the scenes of their triumphs. While their colleagues follow the sun of vacationland, the lame ducks have returned to empty their desks, take down the autographed pictures from their walls, and speak their farewells to the office staff.

Or so it would seem. Behind this gloomy atmosphere, the quiet, and the lethargy of Capitol Hill between sessions, there is much activity. It will not be reflected in the morning paper, but once Congress has convened, the little time bombs being planted during these weeks of official inactivity will explode. Some will make a small pop, but others will rebound loudly in their hectic heyday.

Some of the decisions being made now involve the passage of important legislation — the "must" bills of the Johnson Administration. White House aides and Democratic leaders have already begun to put their heads together on such matters as the misnamed "medicare" (it deals only with hospitalization for the aged), Federal aid to education, and the host of welfare — or "handout" — measures which will be served up as the "Great Society."

These conferences deal with Congressional strategy. But they are also connected very closely with President Johnson's inaugural message, now being pounded on the anvils of principle and expediency by Presidential aides, speech-writers, and political strategists. President Johnson feels that the voters have given him a clear mandate to do as he pleases in the next four years. But he is shrewd enough to realize that he must work with the Congress.

LARGE MAJORITIES have a way of getting out of hand, as any practicing politician knows, and Mr. Johnson plans to hold his troops in line till all the votes are counted. Therefore, he must go through the motions of consultation, must at least know the thinking of his legislative lieutenants, must familiarize himself with the pitfalls ahead for any specific bill he proposes in the inaugural.

The Administration contingent in House and Senate — and by that I mean those trusted few who can be counted on to do the President's bidding — is busily assessing the predilections of new members and measuring them against those of the legislators who won re-election. The President would like to see his program sail through as smoothly as possible, with no show-downs. His picture of himself as a consensus-maker would suffer if he had to use an iron hand.

The Republicans, lacking the power to stop the Johnsonian juggernaut, are seeking to mend fences and build new alliances in the hope of putting up a dramatic, if not effective opposition.

AT GOVERNOR'S REQUEST

Committee Kills Tax Raise Bills

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, as requested by Gov. John McKeithen, Friday killed several tax raise measures which competed with administration bills.

It cleared for floor action a constitutional proposal by Rep. Ford Stinson, Caddo Parish, to let the voters decide Feb. 9 whether to raise the sales tax one cent to finance a teacher pay raise.

McKeithen referred to the proposal as "better than nothing" if the legislature fails to provide teacher pay raise money.

In his news conference, McKeithen said he wanted the House committee to declare that a number of tax measures not specifically mentioned in his call to the special session were unconstitutional and would be invalid if passed.

The committee, headed by Rep. Jesse McLain, St. Tammany Parish, began the chopping job shortly afterward.

The committee ended its meeting without a hearing on a controversial bill to set up a legislative investigation into public construction contracts.

McLain said the hearing probably would be held Tuesday.

The committee returned unfavorable reports on:

A proposed two-cent boost in the natural gas severance tax.

A one-cent boost in the sales tax, to be dedicated to old age assistance and teacher pay.

Another similar one-cent sales tax boost which would be subject to a public vote in 1966.

The committee voted to report without action these bills:

A three-mills excise tax on documents such as mortgages, stocks and bonds.

A decrease in exemptions for individuals from the state income tax, with revenues dedicated to teacher pay.

An increase in the tax on soft drinks.

A spokesman for the governor's office told the committee such measures would be illegal because they were not germane to items on the special session call.

The Stinson proposal, which would be offered to the voters in a referendum, would levy an additional one-cent sales tax and dedicate the revenues to implementation of the minimum pay schedules for teachers and other school personnel.

Stinson said his proposal could be used under a provision which allows issues affecting the schools to be put up to a public vote. The law originally was passed in interest of segregation.

The committee reported without action a special tax bill by Rep. Richard Talbot, Terrebonne. It would allow the Terrebonne Parish Police Jury, with approval of the school board, to call an election on whether half of the school board's portion of sales tax revenue may be used to pay teacher salaries.

Two Senate-passed bills won committee approval.

One bill would extend the state highway use tax to butane, propane and diesel fuels, now excluded, and bring in an estimated $500,000 in additional revenues. It is backed by the administration.

The other bill would remove from the Louisiana Mineral Board the responsibility of administering two oil-rich south Louisiana estates for some 3,000 heirs. Administrators would be named by the courts instead.

A proposal to allow the Louisiana Arts and Science Center and Baton Rouge to build a planetarium won committee approval.

The center, city and parish could issue $300,000 in bonds for the project. The city and parish, as co-owners, would share the cost.

A bill by administration leaders to transfer to the Department of Hospitals functions of the welfare department relating to retarded children won committee approval.

McLain said his committee Monday will take up three bills to reduce the required markup on liquor to 10 per cent and increase the liquor tax. Revenues would be dedicated to teacher pay.

McKeithen said at his news conference these measures also were excluded from the call and could not legally be taken up in the special session.

ALDERMAN DISCLOSES

Property Termed Small For Dock

West Monroe's river front land on Commerce Street has been labeled too small to be of much importance as a dock facility, apparently countering one objection that has been raised to its proposed sale.

Alderman George Wylie disclosed Friday that he has a communication from the Louisiana Department of Public Works in which the property is so described. He announced that he favors the sale.

"I think the city has outgrown the purpose for which the land is being used," the alderman said. "We have taken an option on other property more centrally located for the purpose and I think the sale would be to the city's advantage."

Wylie was absent from the meeting Nov. 10 at which the intent to sell was revealed. At that time, alderman Charles Anding, A. L. DeLoach and Mrs. Joyce T. Smith voted to revoke dedications in the area, preparatory to vote Dec. 8 declaring the land surplus and offering it for sale at a minimum of $72,000.

Since the November meeting, however, opposition has developed and, according to law, a public hearing must be held.

Alderman Earl Duncan, who voted against the revocations Nov. 10, reaffirmed his position

Friday in separate comments. "That $72,000 is the same price that was turned down several months ago and I can't see that anything much has changed," he declared.

"I think that property is very valuable to the city and I think there will be quite a few people protesting this thing. The land is being used and I don't see how it can be called surplus."

The land now holds city garages and other facilities, though an option has been taken on two acres on Haynes Street to replace it.

Wylie's remarks seemed to contradict reports that the property would be valuable as a dock facility with the deepening to nine feet of the river channel. He said a public works official inspected the property at his request and found it too small.

Meanwhile, the other aldermen, also commenting separately Friday, held to their support of the sale.

A spot check of seven downtown businessmen revealed no opposition.

Judge Barham Remands Man In Theft Case

Judge Mack Barham processed a light docket in Fourth District Court Friday, remanding 21-year-old Raymond Tibodeaux of Morgan City after he pleaded guilty to theft of an automobile.

The vehicle was valued at $250.

In a misdemeanor session presided over by Judge Barham, three persons were fined for driving while under the influence of an intoxicating beverage and another was given a 90-day suspended sentence for illegal carrying of a weapon.

Fined for DWI were Claud M. Almond, 600 Olive St., West Monroe, $400 as a second offender; Troy L. Braswell, Bossier City, $300; and John S. Taylor, 709 Wood St., Monroe, $300.

John Lenard, 108 Grayling Lane, Monroe, was given the 90-day suspended sentence and placed on one year probation.

Other counts handled included several minor violations.

50 Mile March Honors Kennedy

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss walking champion Alfred Leiser led off an all-night 50-mile march by nearly 100 Swiss Friday night in tribute to the late President Kennedy. The "John F. Kennedy Memorial March" was intended to mark Sunday's first anniversary of Kennedy's assassination.

Holiday Plans Of West Monroe Offices To Vary

A check of holiday plans Friday in West Monroe produced variances.

Postmaster Homer B. Roark has set Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, as a holiday, with only special delivery and postal box mail service planned.

Operation Friday will be on a regular schedule and the regular half-day's operation is planned Saturday.

Meanwhile, city offices, but for the fire and police departments, will be closed Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The same is true for the Chamber of Commerce.

The Ouachita Parish School Board office will be closed only on Thursday.

Four Musicians At Tech Aided

RUSTON (Special) — Financial aid for four student musicians, including two pianists and two voice pupils, has been announced by Dr. Marshall E. Bretz, head of the music department at Louisiana Tech.

Selected as recipients of these awards were Andrea Turner of Ruston, piano; Dace Gisclair of New Orleans, piano; David Wylie of Ruston, voice, and Myrna Williams of Plaquemine, voice.

These grants were awarded to encourage talented young musicians to seek the educational development of their capabilities.

Dr. Bretz said. These students must show a marked degree of musical talent and a desire to pursue high ideals of musical scholarship, he added.

Area Teachers To Attend Meet

Members of the Fifth District Retired Teachers Association will join others Monday in Shreveport to attend the Retired Teachers' meeting to be held there.

The teachers' meeting is being held in conjunction with the Louisiana Teachers Association annual convention.

The retired teachers are scheduled to meet at 9 a.m. at the Captain Shreve Hotel.

LTA Will Hear Gov. McKeithen

Louisiana Gov. John McKeithen will address the closing general assembly Wednesday of the Louisiana Teacher Association convention in Shreveport. The local school superintendents are among those planning to attend.

Ouachita Parish Supt. Milton C. Hall released a telegram Friday from LTA President Frank L. Miller announcing McKeithen's scheduled appearance and indicated that he and Monroe City Supt. Van D. Odom plan to attend together.

The pair will leave Sunday by automobile for Shreveport and convention opening Monday.

McKeithen will speak at the 9 a.m. general assembly at Hirsch Youth Center on the state fairgrounds.

U.S. IS BLOCK

Additional U.N. Observers May Raise Prickly Issue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant raised the issue Friday of whether to allow additional countries to send U.N. observers to New York.

The countries that could be affected are Communist China, East Germany, North Korea and North Viet Nam. There are roadblocks in each case, due mainly to U.S. nonrecognition.

The United Nations now grants observers' facilities here only to nonmember governments "which are full members of one or more specialized agencies and are generally recognized by members of the United Nations," and that standard rules out all four.

In line with this practice, West Germany, South Korea, South Viet Nam, Switzerland, Monaco and the Vatican have observers in New York on U.S. visas. They are admitted to the public galleries at U.N. meetings and are given U.N. documents.

Thant put the question up to members in his 10,000-word annual report to the General Assembly.

In the introduction to his report, Thant said of the observers "I believe that their presence in New York has helped them toward a better understanding of the international scene."

"Fully cognizant of the political difficulties involved, I cannot help but wonder whether the time has not come when other countries not at present represented in New York should be enabled to maintain contact with the world body and be able to listen to its deliberations."

"In this way, they too would obtain an exposure, now denied them, to the currents and cross-currents of opinion in the world organization. I feel that such exposure will have beneficial results which might well outweigh the political objections."

The United States does not recognize Communist China, East Germany, North Korea and North Viet Nam, which are rivals of non-Communist governments it does recognize.

A U.N. spokesman said Thant's remark was intended "to stimulate thinking" among members.

NLSC Group To Participate At LTA Meet

Several Northeast Louisiana State College faculty members and students are program participants for the Louisiana Teachers Association convention which opens at Shreveport on Monday.

James F. Hawkins, supervisor of scholarships and placement, is chairman of the LTA's convention appraisal committee. Also a member of the committee is Leonard L. Kilgore Jr., associate professor of education and director of student teaching.

Dr. Edward J. Kramar, chairman of the speech department, will be the featured speaker for the Louisiana Speech Association's program on communication on Tuesday morning. He will discuss "International Communication Problems."

Prof. James W. Parkerson, also of the NLSC speech department, is executive secretary of the state speech association.

Mrs. Florence Albritton of the college's music faculty will be a panelist at the Louisiana Music Educators Association meeting on Monday morning. She will discuss "How to Develop Good Sightreaders."

Appearing on the student program of the Louisiana Association for Health, Recreation and Physical Education will be two NLSC senior H&PE majors, Judith Ann Cook and Stanley Starr, both of Monroe.

Another NLSC student, choir accompanist Ronald Brothers of Monroe, will be organist for the annual vesper service on Sunday afternoon.

He declined to say which countries Thant had in mind. The secretary-general was understood not to be thinking of Communist China, however. Observers are a device for non-member countries. Nationalist China is already a U.N. member. The only question is whether Communist or Nationalist delegates should be seated.

East Germany, North Korea and North Viet Nam are not U.N. members, because the General Assembly has followed the policy of not admitting divided countries to membership.

East Germany has representatives in Geneva on Swiss visas who function as observers, get U.N. documents, and sit in the public galleries at meetings at the European office of the United Nations.

The East German Parliament last July declared that both parts of Germany should have equal status at the United Nations.

West Germany observer Sigismund von Braun called on Thant Friday after the introduction was circulated but before it was released for publication.

His office said Thant told him "that the attitude of the secretariat was unchanged and that observers could only be sent from countries which are generally recognized" and that "this excluded East Germany, which in the opinion of the secretariat is not a country."

The secretary-general also repeated the proposal he made at a news conference recently for bringing Communist China into talks with the other atomic powers — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

He called for progress toward disarmament next year and added: "I hope consideration will also be given to the possibility of a dialogue among the five nuclear powers."

Rabid Animals Decline In Area

No positive diagnosis of rabid animals has been made by Miss Florence Drach, administrator of the Regional Laboratory here, since Nov. 4, she said Friday.

The lab head said that a number of heads of animals suspected of carrying the disease have been brought to the lab for brain smear tests. She reported that she had run tests on heads of squirrels, mink, coons, possums, dogs, cats, foxes and a mouse, but that all the tests were negative.

Miss Drach explained that no heads had even been brought to the lab for examination this past week. Apparently the disease is on the decline since the weather has turned cooler, she said.

Neville Rallies In Fourth To Top Rebs In Final Game Of Year, 20-7

NEVILLE'S RONNIE Clark romps through West Monroe defenders for two yards and down to the West Monroe 10 yard line in the second quarter of play. Three plays later Dale Young plunged over from the two and tied the game 7-7, but Neville went on to win, 20-7, at Rebel Stadium Friday night. Other identifiable players are West Monroe's Whitty Hood (77), David Edgar (23), and Dewey Burt (64). (Staff photo by Richard Greene)

Robinson Carries Tigers To Victory

By BUTCH MUIR
World Sports Writer

West Monroe put up a long fight for three quarters before Neville rallied with two touchdowns in the fourth period and downed its cross-river rival, 20-7, before a chilled packed house at Rebel Stadium Friday night.

The 1-AAA victory gave the Tigers an 8-2 season record, 5-2 in district play, and left the Rebels with a 2-7-1 slate, 2-5 in conference play, in the last game of the season for both teams.

Tiger halfback Bobby Robinson plunged from the one-yard line twice to end two Neville drives with touchdowns in the last stanza to give Neville the edge it needed in the tilt.

The Rebels got the breaks at the opening of the game to go ahead, 7-0, early in the first period.

West Monroe won the opening toss and elected to receive. But not being able to move against the quick Neville line, halfback Ray Alexander punted from his 36 to the Neville 27, good for 41 yards.

Three plays later, Rebel tackle Whitty Hood, hit Tiger quarterback Kenny Cobb, knocking the ball loose and falling on it to give West Monroe a first down at the Neville 14-yard line. But again Neville's line wouldn't allow the Rebels any yardage and took over on downs at the seven.

Neville promptly got the ball out to the 20-yard line, the big play coming on a 10-yard scamper by halfback Tom Coats. After Robinson gained six more to the 26, alternate quarterback Ronnie Clark was hit by a hard charging Rebel line, and had the ball knocked loose from his grip. After a scramble for the bouncing pigskin, defensive halfback Pete Lea recovered to give the Rebs a first down at the 16.

The Rebels lost nine yards back to the 25 on the next three plays. On a fourth down situation, Rebel quarterback Johnny Williams hit Alexander in the end zone to break the ice. After Alexander added the extra point, West Monroe held a 7-0 lead with 3:58 left in the first quarter.

Late in the second quarter, Neville started a drive from its own six yard line. In six plays, the Tigers had rolled to the West Monroe 35, picking up four first downs on the way. The drive, however, was stalled when Clark and Robinson were hit for three yard losses.

West Monroe took over at the 33, but on the first play Tiger linebacker - fullback, Robert McSherry 'stole' the ball out of the hands of David Edgar to put Neville at the Rebel 37.

On six plays, behind the running of Clark, the Tigers had their first touchdown with Dale Young getting the honors with a two yard plunge on a quick play. Monty Moncrief kicked his 19th PAT of the season, knotting the score, 7 - 7, with 2:05 left in the half.

But Neville didn't want a tie score and promptly recovered an onside kick at the Reb 39 yard stripe. But three successive passes fell incomplete and Clark punted down to the eight.

The half ended three plays later.

Play in the third quarter was merely exchanges of punts between the teams. West Monroe punted three times while the Tigers had to kick twice.

Neville took over at the Reb 45 after the third West Monroe kick. Behind the hard running of Young and McSherry plus a 15 yard penalty, the Tigers had a first and goal situation at the one yard stripe.

Robinson then scored his first touchdown of the fourth period on a dive play off left tackle. The pass from center was low and Moncrief never got off his boot for the PAT. With 9:39 left in the game, the Tigers held a 13 - 7 lead, which was actually all they needed.

West Monroe tried to go to the airways at this point, but Williams was thrown for losses repeatedly and ended the night with a minus 36 yards.

Williams guided his Rebel crew to the nine-yard line after taking the kickoff at the 50. The drive ended when McSherry picked off an aerial and ran back to the 34, which ended the game.

Robinson gained 91 yards in the contest, to add to the 591 he had during the first nine games and ended the season with 682 total yards and the Twin City rushing crown.

Following Robinson was a Young with 46 and Edgar with 21.

In total statistics, the Tigers held a big edge, in first downs 15-4, and yards rushing, 185-2. The Rebs led in passing, 60-28.

West Monroe added to its injury list in the first half, with end Roy Crain having to be taken to the hospital with an ankle injury, and Peyton Wilson sitting out the second half with a shoulder ailment.

Free Toss Gives Piston Victory

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ray Scott's field goal with one second remaining gave the Detroit Pistons a 106-105 National Basketball Association victory over the Baltimore Bullets Friday night.

The Pistons, who have won four of five since Dave DeBusschere took over as coach, controlled the ball for the final 18 seconds after Baltimore had taken a 105-104 lead on Kevin Loughery's foul shot.

DeBusschere missed a field goal attempt from the right corner and the ball was knocked out of bounds by Baltimore during a scramble under the basket. The Pistons threw the ball into Scott, who caught it beyond the free throw line. He spun and got off a one-hander just before the buzzer.

NEW YORK (AP) — Art Heyman, backcourt man for the New York Knicks, will be lost to the National Basketball Association team for almost a week, club officials said Friday.

Heyman tripped himself in a scrimmage last Wednesday and suffered a sprain of his left big toe. He may join his mates next Tuesday.

LSU Freshmen Romp For Win Over Greenies

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana State's freshmen, using five quarterbacks, rolled to a 25-0 victory over Tulane frosh Friday night.

The victory closed out the season for coach "Scooter" Purvis' Baby Bengals with a 3-1 record, while the Tulane frosh, coached by Howard Tippett, finished with an 0-3-1 mark.

"A real fine game," commented LSU varsity coach Charlie McClendon who watched the game from the pressbox. "Our line really got the job done."

LSU alternated quarterbacks Spike Pierce, Fred Mixon, Mickey Christian, Fred Haynes and James Lambert.

Pierce put on a booming punting show, averaging 46 yards per punt.

In addition, LSU got yeoman offensive work from Maurice LeBlanc and Sammy Grezaffi while Chris Cenac, Bill Fortier, and Allen Richert.

LSU struck for two first half tallies, with LeBlanc, a prep all-star at Lafayette High School last season, hauling in passes for both markers. The first was a 21-yarder from Pierce; the second a 22-yarder from Christian.

In the third period Fred Haynes knifed over from the one and the Tigers wrapped it up with a fourth quarter tally on a 9-yard pass from Lambert to end Bob Borison.

LSU rolled up 288 yards total offense while Tulane got a mere 30 yards on the ground.

Oakland Raiders Shooting For 2nd In AFL Ranks

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — It took the Oakland Raiders 10 games to escape the Western Division cellar of the American Football League.

Now the Raiders will be looking toward second place when they entertain the much-improved New York Jets at Frank Houll Field Sunday.

The Raiders, 2-7-1 after last week's 2-10 defeat of Houston, have a score to settle with the Jets. New York helped put Oakland in the AFL basement by stomping the Raiders 35-13 in an early season contest.

New York, a nearly unanimous pre-season pick for last in the AFL's Eastern Division, is 4-4-1.

A big part of the credit for New York's success is attributable to rookie Matt Snell, second in the league in rushing with 650 yards on 141 carries.

Jets quarterback Dick Wood also enjoys two of the league's best receivers for 716 yards, and Don Maynard, 31 for 687.

An Oakland victory, coupled with a Houston upset of Kansas City, would leave the Raiders just a game out of second place.

CAJUN CLASSIC

Palmer, Nicklaus Are Tied For Second Spot

By BEN THOMAS

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus started their chase after golf's 1964 money championship in Friday's delayed opening of the $25,000 Cajun Classic, but had to take a back seat to late finishing Frank Beard.

The 25-year-old Beard braved skidding temperatures to forge a five-under-par 67 for a one stroke lead over Palmer, Nicklaus and two other pros.

Winding up his round on the front nine, Beard was six under when he teed off for the par three ninth hole, a green guarded by water. He lost one stroke by bogeying the hole but was consoled by the fact that Palmer had gone into the drink on the same hole and wound up with a double bogey five.

The water barrier didn't bother Dick Chasse of Covington, who got an ace for the 19th hole-in-one on the tour this year. Chasse carded a two-over-par 74 and was well back in the pack of 150 pros and 10 amateurs playing in the final PGA event of the year, which will determine the dollar derby.

Palmer, who has earned over $111,000 this season, leads Nick-laus by $318.87.

Dave Hill of Jackson, Mich., and Cotton Dunn, a 27-year-old Oklahoma rookie, had 68s over the Oakborne Country Club course to match scores by Palmer and Nicklaus.

Doug Sanders, who won this tourney in 1961, didn't show up this year after signing up to play. Under PGA rules, he will be fined $100 but Dunn probably would be delighted to play it for him.

Dunn had signed to play in the Cajun Classic after the Almaden

Open — the previous tour stop — but his card got lost in the shuffle and he wasn't on the entry list here. Sanders' cancellation gave Dunn a spot at the last minute.

Thursday's round was washed out by a thunderstorm, which caused temperatures to drop from the 70s to the low 40s. The storm also washed out the 74 that Palmer carded Thursday. Because of the delay, the pros who survive the 36-hole cut after Saturday's 18 holes will double up and play 36 holes Sunday.

TRIP TECH. MCNEESE

Indian Runners Take Easy Win

Northeast State's cross country team easily ran away from its two principal Gulf States Conference rivals here Friday afternoon, scoring only 29 points to 44 for McNeese and 57 for Louisiana Tech.

The victory was the fourth of the season against a loss and a tie for Northeast, defending GSC champion. McNeese tied the Indians earlier this fall and Tech came within two points of another occasion.

But Friday it was all Northeast. Ted Jackson and Hunter Horgan of McNeese finished 1-2 but Indians filled the next three spots, then took seventh and 10th.

Jackson toured the 3.2-mile course at Forsythe Park in the excellent time of 15:25 and fellow Cowboy Horgan was two seconds back.

Tom Brown led Northeast for the fifth straight meet, coming in third with a 15:28 clocking. Then came a pair of Bills, White and Smith, with 15:36 and 15:44.

Jim Bodin came in seventh for the Tribe and Bobby Keasler rounded out the team's scoring with 10th. Indians Robert Harvison and Willis Delhomme swept the next two places.

The top man for Tech, which was second to Northeast in last year's GSC meet, was rookie Brendan Minihan, sixth with a

Arkansas Tests Rugged Defense Against Raiders

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Tight-fisted Arkansas, which has scored four straight shutouts in the Southwest Conference, tries to control the league's best offense for another one Saturday.

Texas Tech, racing along on the flying feet of Donny Anderson, aims at its highest finish ever in the conference.

It will be third place if the high-powered offense can crack the rugged defense of the undefeated, united Razorbacks. It also could mean a bid from the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Arkansas already is in the Cotton Bowl and has no worries along that line. But it wants to win the conference championship beyond dispute.

A loss to Texas Tech probably would deprive the Razorbacks of attaining that goal. Because Texas then could tie Arkansas for the title should it win its last game of the season—against Texas A&M on Thanksgiving Day.

Leading the conference in defense with 180.7 yards surrendered per game, Arkansas aims at stopping the greatest threat to its status—Anderson, the mighty Tech runner who is within reach of the national rushing title.

How They Came Out STATE GRID ROUNDUP

Mansfield Gets Loop 1-A Title; Beats Farmers

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Mansfield's Tommy Simmons scored twice here Friday night to give Mansfield a 12-0 victory over the Farmerville Farmers and the District 1-A crown. Many, which had already finished regular season play is the league's runner-up.

In spite of a strong defensive effort by the Farmers, Mansfield scored in the first and third periods, with Simmons going two yards into paydirt in the opening frame and 10 yards in the third.

The Farmers had a 61 yard scoring run by Joe Albritton called back because of a rules infraction during the game.

Farmerville mustered a serious threat late in the initial half when Albritton carried to the Mansfield one yard line just as the horn blew. Albritton completed seven of 12 attempted passes for the night while leading the Farmerville attack.

Mansfield collected 12 first downs in the fray while Farmerville got nine. Since Farmerville was clinging to a chance for second place in the league, depending on the outcome of the game, penetrations were a source of interest in case of a tie. Mansfield came out ahead in that department also, leading three to two.

Defensive standouts for the Farmers included: Bradley Smith and Jimmy Rowell, and Billy Anderson. Offensive stars included Johnny Long with several good aerial catches and Gary Lynn Albritton.

Mansfield finishes the season with a 6-1 record and a 2-1 standing in league play. Farmerville is 1-2 in the conference and sports a 6-4 season mark.

Oak Grove Beats Lake Providence By 20-7 Count

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — Mike Gammill scored twice to lead Oak Grove pass its last District 2-A hurdle and into second place in the conference with a 20-7 win over Lake Providence here Friday night.

The Tigers were awarded the second place berth after they were declared the winner of a 7-7 tie with Vidalia by virtue of more first downs. Both teams ended the session with 6-1 league marks.

The hosts scored in the second with Don Washam going over from the two yard line to cap a 62 yard drive.

Newellton Rolls

WATERPROOF (Special) — Newellton completely dominated play in the first half, but it took two last quarter touchdowns to put down a determined Waterproof crew, 12-2, here Friday night in a district 3-B game.

Fullback Edwin Preis figured in both Newellton tallies, first passing to Carey Walker for a 62 yard tally then later icing away the game with a five yard plunge which capped a 66 yard drive.

Waterproof's two-pointer came in between the Newellton scores when the Tigers' Tru Golfman tackled Carey Walker in the end zone.

The safety had been set up when Newellton halted a Waterproof drive on its one with a pass interception. Seconds later Walker was stopped behind the line as Newellton attempted to move the ball out.

In the first half, Newellton kept the ball for 23 straight plays during one stretch. The Bears drove 90 yards, only to fumble away the ball at the Waterproof four.

Wisner By 14-13

WISNER (Special) — Wisner closed out its football season here Friday night by winning its second game since the third of the season with a fourth quarter come-from-behind District 3-B victory over Crowville, 14-13.

The Bulldogs got the first score of the night in the opening canto on a 30-yard pass from quarterback Gayle Ashley to Hollis Weatherly. Danny Clement kicked the PAT to put Crowville in the lead 7-0.

The second and third periods were defensive standoffs with neither team mustering much of a scoring threat.

The Vikings finished with a 6-1-1 league mark, as did Oak Grove. The two teams battled to a 7-7 tie in their season meeting, and for purposes of determining which team would go to the state tournament, Oak Grove was awarded the game by virtue of first downs.

Vidalia school officials announced that they are appealing the case to the state executive committee in hopes of another decision.

Butch Potot scored two touchdowns for the Vikings, plunging over for four and seven yards. Robert Forester added the other Vidalia score on a two-yard dash.

Both teams got safeties in the contest, Caldwell in the second quarter when a bad snap from center on a punt attempt rolled 28 yards into the Vidalia end zone. Billy Jackson, who was back to punt, fell on the ball.

Vidalia's two pointer came in the final stanza when guard Andy Housley, a 195-pounder, tailed Caldwell halfback Larry Newton in his end zone.

Jena put the caps on an 80-yard drive early in the fourth quarter with Joe Ganey scoring from the one yard line and Keith Tarver kicking the PAT to give the Giants their only score of the night.

Later in the same period, Bunkie guard Harry Norman stopped another Jena drive by intercepting a pass at the 45-yard line of the Giants and returning it for the final Bunkie score. Jena blocked the kick for the PAT.

Sulphur Beaten By Lake Charles

SULPHUR, La. (AP) — Lake Charles beat top-ranked Sulphur 7-6 Friday night to throw the District triple-A championship into a three-way scramble.

The Wildcat victory, provided by the third-period extra point kick by Mark Lumpkin, left Lake Charles, Sulphur and LaGrange with 5-1 records in district play.

Since LaGrange defeated Lake Charles—and Sulphur beat LaGrange—it probably will be up to a committee of district representatives to decide which two move into the state playoffs next week.

Sulphur came out after the half and drove 60 yards in nine plays to score. Halfback Harry Saucier went over on a four-yard plunge after setting it up with a 10-yard dash. Kent Carlin's extra point kick was wide.

After picking up 53 yards on three passes, Buz Clark went over right tackle for four yards and then burst over left guard on the next play for the touchdown.

Lumpkin's kick split the up-rights with 44 seconds left in the third period.

Sulphur is now 9-2 for the season, Lake Charles 6-3.

Crossett Wins

HAMBURG, Ark. (Special) — Crossett's Eagles got three years worth of revenge here Friday night, whipping the Hamburg Lions, 7-6, for the first time since 1960.

Hamburg grabbed a 6-0 lead late in the first half when quarterback Jim Smith hit halfback Tom Chatman with a three yard scoring pass. A kick on the PAT attempt was not good and Hamburg led 6-0 at halftime.

Early in the third period, Crossett came back and tied the score on a 32 yard pass from David Young to end Bill Meadows. Meadows then kicked the winning point.

Hamburg drove to the Crossett 13 yardline with only minutes to play but the Eagles dug in and eventually took over at their own 23.

straight points in an astonishing display of power.

Rayville's next score came when Letlow sneaked into the Mangham backfield and stole a handoff, racing 60 yards to score. Milby ran the conversion.

Flint carried the ball for a fourth quarter Hornet touchdown, taking the ball five yards around left end. A pass from Danny Sorey to Letlow was good for 12 yards and the final Rayville tally.

Fast Action By Exercise Rider Averts Disaster

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fast action by a 17-year-old exercise rider was credited Friday with averting a potentially disastrous fire in a thoroughbred barn at Pimlico Race Track.

One horse was burned badly and may have to be destroyed, but 60 others were led to safety.

Jerry Kamm spotted the fire in a stall occupied by Black Tie. Kamm grabbed a fire extinguisher and put out the blaze after leading the horse outside.

Other track personnel guided remaining horses in the barn to other safe quarters.

Black Tie was supposed to run Friday afternoon in a $3,500 claiming race. Dr. Kenneth Fox, track veterinarian, said he was burned extensively.

Black Tie is owned by Hudson View Farms of New York.

Trading Period
Opens In Major League Baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball officials will likely be asking themselves and others this question during the next 25 days: Is there another Jim Bunning on the market?

The interleague trading period opened at midnight Friday and closes Dec. 15. In between, some wheeling and dealing is expected to take place during the major league meeting in Houston, starting Nov. 30.

Bunning and Philadelphia benefitted most from last year's swapping between National and American League clubs. A 12-game winner for Detroit in 1963, he was dealt to the Phillies with catcher Gus Triandos for outfielder Don Demeter and pitcher Jack Hamilton.

Bunning won 19 games and pitched a perfect game for the Phillies, who topped the National League standings most of the year.

This time, it looks as though Dick Stuart of Boston, Jim Gentile of Kansas City, Bob Allison of Minnesota, Ed Mathews of Milwaukee and Vada Pinson of Cincinnati may be headed for new teams and new leagues.

Stuart, the Red Sox's slugging first baseman is reportedly bound for Philadelphia. The Phils desperately need a long-ball hitter for another shot at the pennant. The Phils are said to be willing to give up a pitcher, either Art Mahaffey or Dennis Bennett.

Stuart slammed 33 homers and drove in 114 runs last season. Mahaffey, a right-hander, compiled a 12-9 record while Bennett, a southpaw, finished with 12-14.

Gentile, another hard-hitting first sacker, is reportedly bound for Houston. He had 28 homers and 71 RBI in 1964.

Football Weather
Doesn't Please All

By Keith Prince

Football weather has finally arrived in the deep South. And who will be the first to agree that it is definitely the kind of weather you should be playing football in?

Why, the professional golfers playing in the Cajun Classic Tournament at Lafayette, who else?

The opening day of the tournament was washed out Thursday when a thunderstorm hit the marshy bayou country of Louisiana and sent temperatures tumbling from the 70's to the 40's.

And, Friday there wasn't much relief in sight as temperatures stayed below 50.

However, the tournament is still headed for its grandest success since the Hebert boys, Lionel and Jay, got things rolling in the Classic several years ago. Reason for this year's "better than ever" success: It's simple. Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

Although Nicklaus is undoubtedly the greatest young player to ever hit the PGA circuit, Palmer is still professional golf's premier showman.

As an indication of Palmer's drawing magnetism we illustrate with this comparison.

Last year Nicklaus appeared at the Cajun Classic but Palmer did not.

The tournament was termed a "huge success" by all due mostly to the crowds attracted by Nicklaus.

Now, with Arnie on hand, this year's pro-am affair conducted before the opening round drew a larger gallery than last year's tourney did at any time during the championship round. And the bulk of Wednesday's crowd was following Palmer.

It leaves little doubt that no matter which man finishes higher in this tournament, Arnold Palmer is still The King.

About People And Places

Here today, gone tomorrow. That's about the story for this year's football season as it begins drifting over the hill after today's games. Although there are still several games left, some due to the delay caused by Hurricane Hilda, today is the last regular season playing date for the majority of schools.

...Northeast is among the finishers today and switches from the gridiron to the gym in only two days when it opens the 1964-65 basketball campaign against Southern State of Arkansas Monday night. The Tribe then travels to Arkansas the next day for a meeting with Arkansas A&M at College Heights. Coach Lenny Fant, starting his eighth season at Northeast, has only two seniors and must replace former greats Jimmy Walker and Irby Gamble who graduated last semester. Tab the Tribe for third in the GSC.

Looking over some of the individual marks for LSU's football team this fall we find that Billy Ezell has the most passes for one game, 26 against Alabama, but Pat Screen leads in passes completed during one game, 16 against Rice. Screen also leads in total offense, 183 yards against Texas A&M. In the individual receiving for one game Doug Moreau and Joe Labruze are tied with six catches each. Moreau caught six against A&M, Tennessee and Ole Miss while Labruze's came against Rice and Alabama.

Milestones along the way of a fading football season: Notre Dame's victory over Michigan State was its first over the Spartans since 1954. Cornell defeated Dartmouth for the first time in 10 years last week. Holy Cross handed its retiring coach Eddie Anderson the 200th victory of his career with Alabama's Paul Bryant recorded his 150th against Georgia Tech. Cotton Bowl bound Nebraska extended its winning streak to 16. Tulane's victory over Vanderbilt was its first SEC win since 1961. Penalties don't always hurt: Kansas, tied 7-7, had fourth-down-and-two at the Colorado

11. The Jayhawks were going to try for the first down but were penalized five yards for delay of game. So! With plans changed, Gary Duff kicked a 33-yard field goal for the winning points.

Should Northeast lose tonight, as is predicted, it will mark the first season since the school began playing football more than 30 years ago that it has gone an entire season without a victory.

Basketball at Baton Rouge: Louisiana State basketball star Dick Malle ranks only behind the great Bob Pettit in single season scoring for the Tigers. Pettit scored 612, 573 and 785 in three seasons at LSU, and Malle's 581-point production of last season comes the closest to those performances.

LSU's probable starting front line for the Loyola game at Baton Rouge Dec. 1 — which includes Bill Wilson (6-8), Harry Heroman (6-6) and Dick Malle (6-5) — is the tallest the Tigers have fielded since Coach Jay McCreary took over in the 1957-58 season. Records, anyone: Tulsa's Jerry Rhone owned seven national records going into last Saturday's game with North Texas State. Tulsa won 47-0 and Rhone now owns 13 such marks. The six he broke while completing 17 passes in 23 attempts for 268 yards include: 185 completions, 2,320 yards passing, total offensive output of 2,541 yards, 134 consecutive passes without an interception and 27 touchdown passes. He also surpassed the mark for yards passing in a varsity career with 4,932.

National TV: This will mark the first year in some time that the Texas-Texas A&M turkey-day battle hasn't been televised. Instead Auburn and Alabama will play on a national hook-up at Birmingham, Nov. 28. Army and Navy will collide at Philadelphia in their "anything goes" tilt. It will be televised.

Also available for SEC fans will be the Dec. 5 game between Mississippi State and Ole Miss from Oxford.

The Guessing Game

The Gulf States Conference proved to be our downfall last week in the "pickings" department. With four games to pick, including Louisiana College which is a state school although not a GSC member, we went wrong on three of them.

Two that we missed, Southeastern over McNeese and Southwestern over Northwestern, might be considered upsets — but that doesn't help the ole record any. We also missed on La. College where Troy State ran over the Wildcats.

Also missed last week was Tulane's victory and Georgia's loss to Auburn. The five of 20 wrong left us with a .750 performance and we now have selected 140 correct in 177 attempts for .791.

Here are this week's picks: Gulf States Conference: Louisiana Tech 21, Northeast 6 — Both teams close out season with good performance. McNeese 14, Southwestern 7 — This would be an upset according to season developments. Southeastern 19, Northwestern 14 — Strictly a guess. Louisiana College 17, Delta State 10 — Wish we had a reason. Southeastern Conference: LSU 20, Tulane 6 — Greer is improved, but no match for Tigers. Florida 7, Florida State 0 — Battle of year for both. Tennessee 13, Kentucky 9 — Steve DeLong leads the way.

Southwest Conference: Arkansas 20, Texas Tech 7 — Razorbacks bid for TV series role at "Unstoppables." Rice 17, TCU 14 — Too much offense. Baylor 21, SMU 13 — Although Hayden Fry could have Mustangs boiling after 44-0 humiliation to Hogs.

Plus ten: Nebraska 14, Oklahoma 7 — Run nation's longest winning streak to 17. Notre Dame 21, Iowa 10 —

Northeast, Bulldogs Close Seasons

Possibly Final Tilt
In Brown Stadium

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

Northeast's cellar-dwelling Indians play host to league leading Louisiana Tech here tonight in a game which will close out the regular seasons of both schools. Game time is 8 p.m. at Brown Stadium.

The contest could bring an end to one era and also establish another Indian record: Northeast has been given permission to request funds from the State Board of Liquidation for the relocation of Brown Stadium and if the funds are granted, this could be the last game in the stadium at its present site.

With the Bulldogs heavy favorites to hand the Indians their ninth consecutive loss, it could also be the first winless season on record for Northeast since it became a senior college in 1951. But, all these "could's" still depend on Tech, with its size and experience, beating Coach Dixie White's little band of mostly freshmen Indians, and the State Board of Liquidation.

Tonight's game is the 12th meeting of the two schools with Tech holding a 10-2 edge in games won. The Indians upset the favored Bulldogs of Coach Joe Aillet in 1962, 13-6 and 7-0 in 1956. Both games were played in Brown Stadium and another upset, with the Techsters ranked nationally, would be a fitting end to the present field, the Indians field.

Tech, ranked number four in small college polls, has already clinched a share of the Gulf States Conference title and could win sole possession of controls, the Indians have also managed to move the ball well but have bogged down when the scoring punch was needed most. Throughout the season, the Tribe has gotten good efforts out of fullback Bobby Scafield and halfback R. F. Wilson. Wilson, the team's scoring leader with 24 points, has proven beneficial to the Indian defense as well.

Wilson also leads the conference in punt and kickoff returns. He has scored twice with a 33 yard return of each. The kickoff scamper came against Northwestern and the punt jaunt was against South-eastern.

Tech's air attack has been directed by junior quarterback Billy Laird who goes into tonight's game with 90 completions of 172 attempts for 1,163 yards and eight touchdowns. He holds new Tech marks in passes attempted and yards passing and has tied the record for completions in a single season. One more touchdown pass would tie another standard. Laird needs about 100 more yards running or passing to break the total offense mark of Joe Rabb which goes back to 1950.

Tech end Speedy Campbell has set a new season record for the crown tonight with a victory. A win would put Tech at 5-0 in conference play.

An Indians victory would throw the conference race into a turmoil which would possibly find Tech sharing in the title and the final co-champion not know until the outcome of the postponed USL - Southeastern game.

Tech suffered its first loss of the season to Southern Mississippi, 14-7, last week while the Indians sat out an open date after falling to USL the previous week.

The Ruston-based Bulldogs have show scoring ability both through the air and on the ground this season while Northeast has given its loyal supporters a few bright sports offensively.

Despite seeing little action in two late season games, fullback Gerald McDowell is the top ground gainer for Tech with 410 yards on 111 carries. Alden Reeves, of Jonesboro, is second with 334 yards on 102 trips through the line. Other Tech ball carriers are freshman standout Richie Golmon with 269 yards gained on 46 trips and sophomore Tommy Linder with 157 yards on 43 carries.

The Indians will be facing the biggest line they have met since Northwestern in the second game of the year. Tech's meaty-linemen average 212 pounds, 15 pounds per man than the Indians' line.

Indian quarterback Johnny Garrison has done most of the Tribe's passing this year but lack of protection has not only hampered his accuracy, but of course, his ability to get the ball off. Five Garrison tosses have gone into the hands of opponents while he has completed 48.8 per cent of his passes.

With Garrison, who has displayed good running ability throughout the season at the

WBA Names 2
Fighters For Title Bout Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Boxing Association, which has stripped Cassius Clay of the heavyweight boxing title, named Ernie Terrell of Philadelphia and Cleveland Williams of Houston to fight for the vacated title.

Terrell is ranked No. 1 and Williams No. 2 by the WBA. Originally, the WBA had planned an elimination series also involving No. 3 ranked Floyd Patterson of New York, former champion, and George Chuvalo of Toronto, the No. 4 contender.

Under the WBA's original plans Terrell would have met Chuvalo and Williams would have taken on Patterson with the winners meeting for the title.

But the original plans were scrapped when the WBA learned that Patterson and Chuvalo already had plans to meet each other. Under the new setup the Terrell-Williams winner would defend the title against the winner of the Patterson-Chuvalo fight.

No dates or sites were set for the fights.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Bowl Bids Go Up For Grabs
In Today's Top Grid Games

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.,
Associated Press Sports Writer

This is the weekend when college football coaches can drop the "Win for the Gipper" type of pep talk and adopt a more practical approach to their athletes. It might be "Win this one for the old bowl, boys" or even "This game means $200,000 to Old Mammy."

The prospect of spending a week or so in some warm spot should have a certain appeal to the players and a half dozen or more of Saturday's winners likely will receive such invitations.

The winner of the Michigan-Ohio State game at Columbus, Ohio, will become the Big Ten champion and representative in the Rose Bowl. It probably will take a vote to decide which Pacific Athletic Conference team will provide the opposition. The conference race ends Saturday and it likely will be a dead heat. Oregon State, Southern California and UCLA will have 2-1 conference records and Washington is 4-2. The PAC pairings are Oregon State vs. Oregon; USC vs. UCLA, Washington vs. Washington State and Stanford vs. California.

If over-all records should be used, the winner between Oregon State, 7-2, and Oregon, 7-1-1, likely would get the Rose Bowl trip. But Southern Cal, 5-3, has a final game next week against Notre Dame, now the nation's No. 1 team, and a victory over the Irish could count heavily.

Visions of bowl games, incidentally, are floating through the heads of the Notre Dame players as they go up against Iowa, whose flashy passing game built around Gary Snook's pitching doesn't show in the Big Ten standings. Notre Dame officials have indicated they might listen to the right invitation at the right time—but that time won't come until they finish the season unbeaten.

According to one source, Louisiana State and Syracuse will receive Sugar Bowl bids if they finish the season in good style. Syracuse winds up Saturday against an old rival, West Virginia. LSU meets Tulane but also has a game against Florida, postponed because of a hurricane, to play off Dec. 5 before it can formally accept a bowl bid.

Still up for grabs are places in the Gator, Bluebonnet and Sun bowls plus a few less glamorous post-season games. Teams that might be in line for invitations include Mississippi, Georgia Tech, Florida, Florida State, Tulsa, Oklahoma, Texas Tech and Penn State.

Florida and Florida State meet at Tallahassee Saturday.

Swaffar May Be Well Enough To Leave Hospital

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma State University basketball player Bob Swaffar, whose right arm was reimplanted after it was twisted off in an accident in the athletic department laundry Nov. 1, probably will be discharged from University Medical Center Tuesday, a spokesman said Friday.

The spokesman said plans call for Swaffar to continue his convalescence in the OSU infirmary at Stillwater, Okla., where he will be able to resume some of his studies.

Swaffar has been getting out of bed briefly for the past week. The medical center spokesman said the transfer would be carried out on schedule if Swaffar continues to progress as well as he has in the past.

The 6-foot-9 junior letterman will continue with the same physical therapy program started here.

Charlie Taylor and passing of Sonny Jurgensen leading charge, have won four of last six... They blanked Pittsburgh 20-0 last week... Dallas had three game winning string snapped by Eagles last week and will find Skins' defense a lot tougher than in first meeting, which Cowboys won 24-18.

Chicago 28, San Francisco 17 — Bears flashed some of 1963 thunder in drubbing Rams last week... Rudy Bukich completed 23 passes and Johnny Morris caught nine for league-leading total of 77, seven short of season record... 49ers, behind rookie signal-caller George Mira, surprised Green Bay, blanking Bart Starr-less Packers in second half on way to 24-14 upset.

New York 17, Pittsburgh 13 — Giants out to save face behind rookie backs Steve Thurlow and Ernie Wheelright, latter recovered from injury that kept him out of 10-10 standoff against St. Louis... Steelers won first meeting of clubs but have slumped since.

AFL — Kansas City 42, Houston 34 — Len Dawson's passing, bogged down in rain last week at San Diego, will shed Oilers' rookie defensive secondary... Conversely, Chiefs have defensive wheels to handle Houston's George Blanda, league's most prolific passer.

NFL — Los Angeles 31, Baltimore 27 — Buffalo's AFL skein ended last week: Colts' nine-game streak next to go... Colt pass catcher Raymond Berry injured, big question mark... Baltimore had to come from behind to beat Minnesota last week... Rams rebounding after loss to Chicago... Green Bay 34, Cleveland 17 — Packers' injured, including quarterback Bart Starr, expected to play... Green Bay Coach Vince Lombardi, still boiling over last week's upset loss to San Francisco, will have Packers up for Browns... Packer pass defense best in league... Green Bay won last regular season meeting from Cleveland, in 1961, 49-17.

Philadelphia 21, St. Louis 13 — Both Clubs hit by injuries but Eagles are on upgrade while Cardinals' passing attack has been bogged down since loss of Sonny Randle several weeks ago. Percentages are with Eagles, who have dropped last four decisions to St. Louis.

Minnesota 24, Detroit 10 — Vikings pushed Colts to limit last Sunday and are eyeing second place. Lions' vaunted defense was wrecked by Cleveland last week... Detroit quarterback Milt Plum bothered by elbow and shoulder injuries but will play... Viking victory will top last year's season high of five.

Boston Downs
Denver 12-7

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's sputtering offense clicked for a second period touchdown and Gino Cappelletti's 50-yard field goal in the third period Friday night enabled the Patriots to whip the stubborn Denver Broncos 12-7.

The Patriots, still nursing a bright hope for the American Football League's Eastern Division title, found themselves on the short end of a 7-2 score at the close of the first quarter.

But quarterback Babe Parilli flipped a 26-yard scoring pass to Cappelletti, the league's top scorer, and the Patriots went in front to stay.

Boston took a skimpy 2-0 early lead in the game when big Jack Rudolph slammed into Denver quarterback Jackie Lee in the end zone. Lee fumbled and the ball rolled out of the zone for a safety.

Denver went in front with one minute left in the opening session when Leroy Moore intercepted a Parilli pass and returned it from the Denver 25 to the Boston 21. Lee then connected with Lionel Taylor for a touchdown.

The Broncos made a dying shot for victory in the final seconds but Ross O'Hanley intercepted a Lee pass at the Boston 20 to end the threat with 10 seconds left.

MONROE MORNING WORLD, Saturday, November 21, 1964 — 1-B

Burnett-Brothers Vows Read By Candlelight

In a candlelight ceremony at the New Hope Baptist Church of Ruston, Miss Julia Gayle Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn W. Puckett of Ruston, became the bride of Larry I. Burnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Burnett of West Monroe. Rev. H. S. Stewart performed the double ring vows at 7:30 p.m. Friday, November 6, following a program of nuptial music by Miss Lynell Stewart, organist and Miss Carolyn Leachman, soloist.

Branched candelabra, draped with English ivy formed a background for a massive basket of gladioli and pompons with flocked greenery. Two large Boston ferns completed the setting.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of silk organza over net and tulle. Her veil, bordered with lace fell from a pearl-encrusted silk crown. She carried a bouquet of white pixie carnations with white maline and satin.

Mrs. Jerry Haynes, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and bridesmaid was Miss Mary Jo Truett. They wore identical short dresses of pink silk organza with matching slippers and headresses of pink silk organza ribbon, net and lace. Their bouquets were cascades of pink dahlias, with matching ribbons and tulle.

Jerry Haynes attended Mr. Burnett as best man and groomsmen were Pvt. Robert Murray of the U. S. M. C. Serving as ushers were Larry Colvin and George Wayne McDaniel. Becky and Woody Leggett served as candlelighters.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a blue suit with matching accessories and cor-

Holiday Table Gleams With Harvest Signs

Gourds, pumpkins, corn, leaves, stalks of wheat take on a significant glow when all are spray enameled.

The symbols of harvest grouped in the centerpiece are all spray enameled metallic gold, with a large gold candle added to bring elegance to a holiday table outfitted with crisp white linens. For "sit-down dinners," gourds become placecards by writing names with brush - on enamels.

The centerpiece is equally suitable for a buffet, since it can be arranged any way to fit your table. For a more informal setting, spray enamel the table decorations "brighter than nature" colors - tones of yellow, red, orange, brown.

DEAR ABBY

Be Strictly Business And Keep It Platonic

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee with two teen-aged children. For the past six months I have been seeing a lot of a man who is also my financial advisor. He has been like a father to my children. He is married and has three children of his own. Ours is a platonic relationship and nothing more. He spends many evenings in my home, and quite often it is 2 and 3 A.M. before we realize it. I would not want to cause him any trouble at home, but he has told me that he didn't have much of a marriage before he met me so I shouldn't feel guilty. If I suggest that we talk business only at his office, he'll be hurt. And besides, I would miss him terribly. Yet when I think of his wife and family my conscience bothers me. Can you advise me?

NAMELESS, PLEASE DEAR NAMELESS: Give this "platonic relationship" another six months and it will be another one of those "it-just-happened" affairs. See him at his office. The kind of business that finds a married "advisor" lounging around a divorcee's home at 2 and 3 A.M. can lead to moral bankruptcy.

DEAR ABBY: My husband sleeps in his underwear, but that's not my problem. Sometimes if he can't sleep he will go into the living room and watch television and then he falls asleep on the couch. Our daughter came home late with a date one night and when she turned on the light in the living room, there was Pa asleep on the couch in his underwear. You can imagine how embarrassed my daughter was. He reads your column, Abby, so maybe if you said that some people should have a little more respect for other people, it might help.

LOUISVILLE DEAR LOUISVILLE: On the nights your daughter has a date, impress on your husband the importance of sleeping in his own bed. If he's really bull-headed, buy him a nice pair of pajamas and try to get him to wear them. Or would he rather provide his daughter with a good excuse for not coming home at all?

Lexington PTA Panel Topic Concerns Study

The regular meeting of the Lexington Avenue School P.T.A. was held in the school auditorium Thursday, November 19, at 7:00 p.m.

Mrs. John Mullens, president, opened the meeting and announced that the P.T.A. would again give prizes to the rooms with the most parents present. A brief financial report was given and the committee appointed to study possible projects for the spending of carnival money.

"Development of Desirable Study Habits" was the topic for discussion with Miss Rosa Belle McDonald, moderator and Mrs. George Riser, Mrs. William Hammond, Dean James Nicholson and Mrs. James Faucett, panel members.

Miss McDonald opened the discussion by reminding the audience that the ground work for good study habits is formed long before starting school and it is the responsibility of the school to nurture this growth.

Dean Nicholson spoke of the motivation of the child to learn. Of the four factors influential in motivating different children — pride, praise, material gain and ingredient of fear.

Mrs. Faucett spoke of the pressures on the children today. Some are useful in that they act as a driving force but care must be taken to prevent negative pressures.

Mrs. Riser spoke of the need of self discipline and perseverance in acquiring good study habits.

Mrs. Hammond spoke of the school's part in learning the techniques of studying.

Mrs. Sara Ellen Bottoroff's second grade and Mrs. Hammond's fourth grade won the attendance prizes.

held a cornucopia filled with fruit and the table was centered with a ceramic turkey gobble and hen carrying out the Thanksgiving theme.

Small puritan figures marked places for the eight guests who were Mrs. Al Huey, Mrs. Wesley Shaffo, Mrs. Thomas Munnell, Mrs. Henry Guerriero, Mrs. Cecil Jarrell, Mrs. Potts, Mrs. Peters and the hostess.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Aluminum Utensils Need Special Care

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Folks:

We have so many questions regarding the care of aluminum utensils, as to what causes warping, discoloration, etc., that I am going to copy excerpts verbatim from a bulletin which we received from the Research Director of the Aluminum Company of America:

"To remove discoloration caused by minerals present in foods and some water, boil a solution of either two table-spoons of vinegar or two table-spoons of cream of tartar per quart of water in pan 10 to 15 minutes. Water discoloration may be avoided by water conditioning.

"If food should burn in an aluminum utensil, fill pan with warm water, boil a few minutes, then scrape loose with a wooden clothespin or small stick. (Never use a knife or other metallic scraper which will scratch or gouge the aluminum.) Pan then may be scoured with cleanser, steel wool and soap, or a soap-filled scouring pad.

"If a utensil has become warped or bulged so that it will not rest flatly on the range, place a wooden block over the bulge and hammer back into shape.

"To avoid warping, do NOT overheat the utensil. If a gas range is used, tip of flame should just touch the bottom of pan. NEVER flare up around the sides. If an electric range is used, use high heat only a few minutes, then switch to medium. Once food is brought to cooking temperature, heat may be reduced to low.

"Use of a water softener will avoid lime deposits usually found in a tea kettle. Give the kettle the same daily care given other utensils. Tea kettles should be emptied every night, dried thoroughly and cleaned on the inside with cleanser or steel wool and soap several times a week.

"Removal of lime deposits from kettles is very difficult and serious damage to the kettle may occur. It is far better to avoid the formations of such deposits through the use of softened water in kettles. This fact is apparent from a review of the following method for removing lime scale deposits:

"Place empty kettle over a very low heat. Allow it to heat until the deposit has thoroughly dried. Tap bottom with a wooden block or wooden handle until the coating cracks. It can then be lifted from the kettle. If small particles still remain, they may be scraped loose with a wooden clothespin. The kettle should then be rubbed inside with cleanser or steel wool and soap, rinsed and dried thoroughly.

"To clean and polish the outside of an aluminum utensil use any good silver polish.

"Some soaps and cleaners contain strong alkalies such as caustic soda, sal soda, or potash. These will injure the appearance of the utensil causing it to become rough and dull gray. Generally speaking, cleaning compounds that do not injure the hands will not injure aluminum.

"After each use wash utensils in hot soapy water.

"Rub with cleanser or steel wool and soap.

"Rinse with clear, hot water.

"Dry thoroughly."

And our many thanks for this valuable information! Heloise

Coffee Fetes Mrs. Brown In Tallulah

Mrs. H. H. Howington of Lake Providence was hostess for a coffee Saturday morning, Nov. 14, complimenting a recent bride, Mrs. Charles Brown of Tallulah.

For the occasion the honoree chose a blue wool sheath with jewel neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Her corsage was of yellow chrysanthemums tied with satin ribbon.

Refreshments were served in the dining room where coffee was poured by Mrs. F. A. Babb, Mrs. Wayne Baker, Mrs. Frank Cain and Mrs. William Knobles. Assisting in serving were Miss Anne Gilfoil, Miss Beckey Howington and Miss Anne Knobles.

Central decor for the refreshment table was an arrangement of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums in a footed bowl. On the buffet there was a large honey-comb turkey surrounded by gourds and autumn leaves.

The autumn color note was further employed in the living room, music room and on the deck overlooking Tensas Bayou. A large number of parish residents called during the appointed hours of entertaining.

Salinger Recalls Urgent Message

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Pierre Salinger recalls an agonizing 42 minutes in an airplane over the Pacific in which he learned of President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

He also recalled, in an interview during a brief visit to Washington this week, that Kennedy had told him only three days before the fatal trip to Dallas, last Nov. 22, that "I wish I wasn't going to Texas."

Salinger, now a Democratic senator from California, was a member of the inner circle and a spokesman for the president as White House press secretary. He is serving out the remainder of a short-term appointment to the Senate. He lost a bid in the Nov. 3 election to keep the seat.

It was on Nov. 19, 1963, Salinger said, that Kennedy told him of the reluctance with which he contemplated the forthcoming trip to Dallas.

"It was not said in any sense of premonition," Salinger said, "but more in the sense of weariness. He had just finished a speaking tour of Western states and was tired. He wanted more time at home."

"I said 'Don't worry, it's going to be a great trip' — and when I walked out of his White House office at 8 p.m. it was the last time I saw him."

Salinger, six Cabinet members and various aides were aloft over the Pacific, he recalled, when he received a summons to the cabin of Secretary of State Dean Rusk. They were en route to economic meetings in Japan.

"There were secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall with Rusk in the cabin."

"Rusk held in his hand a sheet of yellow paper I recognized as coming from the radio-teletype with which we had contact with Washington."

"I glanced over Rusk's shoulder and read the message on the yellow paper:

"President John F. Kennedy was shot by an assassin in Dallas, Texas, today. He is believed dead."

Rusk read the message aloud to the group, who listened in a stunned silence.

Salinger said he suggested immediately they should order the plane back to Honolulu and Washington, and continued: "Rusk said, 'That's right, but we have to verify this some way.'"

"I went forward to the communications and in less than a minute had a radio connection to the situation room in the White House which is the nerve center for its round the clock operations."

"I said 'Situation room, this is Wayside' My code name. 'What is the word on the president?' "They answered, 'We are still verifying. The president has been shot. We believe in the head. Our information is he is still alive.'"

Salinger recalled the tense minutes that followed during which Freeman, a wounded veteran of Guadalcanal in World War II, mused aloud at one point:

"I was shot in the head and survived. He'll make it."

Then, after another inconclusive radio report, came the official message from the White House, 42 minutes after the first flash:

"The president is dead."

Singers' Plane In Small Mishap

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A chartered plane carrying England's Dave Clark Five rock 'n' rollers brushed wings Friday on the ground at San Francisco Airport with a Western Airlines plane carrying 52 passengers and a crew of five.

No one was hurt but the planes were damaged slightly. A spokesman for Western said its prop-driven DC6B was out on the runway, standing still, preparatory to a takeoff for Los Angeles. He said the twin-engine Martin 404 with the English group came too close as it also was getting ready for a takeoff for Las Vegas, Nev.

Western plane sustained a deep dent on the wing. The passengers were put on other planes. The chartered plane was owned by East Coast Flying Service of Jacksonville, Fla.

The Dave Clark Five had performed Thursday night at San Francisco's Cow Palace. It is a popular rival of England's Beatles.

Their plane taxied back for an inspection by Federal Aviation Agency men. Its damage appeared slight.

Leaders Inspect Ouachita River Terminal Here

Business and industrial leaders from north Louisiana and south Arkansas gathered Friday for an inspection tour of a pioneer venture along the Ouachita River three miles south of the city.

Moore Terminals, Inc. is the first shipping and receiving facility on the river to come as a result of start of construction of the nine foot channel project.

H. K. Thatcher, executive vice president of the Ouachita River Association, said free enterprise projects are "what are going to make this thing work" in discussing the valley's future.

In addition to the two storage tanks for diesel fuel now at the location, James W. Moore, president of the terminal said dry dock facilities were under construction and a 12,000 barrel creosote tank is also being considered.

He said the terminal is capable of handling more than a million gallons of fuel oil each month and reported a barge was due in Friday afternoon with one-half million gallons of diesel oil.

The new terminal is "only the beginning of the great development to take place on the Ouachita in the next few years," Monroe Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard said during the inspection.

The Mayor said he hoped this development would cause the port authority to "become active now," adding he felt the authority should start buying property and promoting installation on the river now.

Thatcher pointed out that when the nine foot channel is completed in 1970, the river will be 20 feet deeper and the route from Red River up the Ouachita would be 60 miles shorter.

Option Recorded

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Illinois Central Railroad recorded Friday an option to buy a 675-acre tract in Ascension Parish from attorney Ben Miller of Baton Rouge and other Louisiana owners.

The Chicago office of Illinois Central declined to comment on the option.

The property is the so-called Bertau property, located between Linwood and Belle Helene plantations.

Wyandotte Chemical Corp. this week took an option on 1,269 acres in the Linwood tract, next to its present Geismar property. This price was $1.9 million.

The new option recorded in the clerk's office here was signed Aug. 17 and lasted until Nov. 16, this past Monday. Miller said he had no information as to what Illinois Central planned to do with the property, should it buy the land. The tract reportedly is priced at $1.575 an acre.

ALUMNUS TOUR

Johnson's Caravan Rooms Texas Town

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson made a sentimental journey to his old college Friday. He visited his one-time boarding house, dropped in on friends, and got his motorcycle lost or snarled at least thrice.

The Johnson caravan through this community of 13,000 even produced one fender-bending collision, involving Mrs. Johnson's limousine and a car carrying White House staff members. No one was hurt.

Johnson, member of the class of 1930, flew from his ranch to San Marcos by helicopter to help inaugurate the new president of Southwest Texas State College, known in his day as San Marcos State Teachers College.

The chief executive told the inaugural gathering that "I like it so much I believe very soon I'll have one of my own" — a reference to his scheduled inauguration on Jan. 20.

Johnson also recalled that, as a San Marcos student, he used to go courting with a blonde girl — he didn't know Mrs. Johnson then — at the tree-shaded grounds of the town's federal fish hatchery.

After the ceremony, the President went to the hatchery for a nostalgic look. A crowd broke up the motorcade at this point and Johnson went down one road while Mrs. Johnson, riding two cars behind, went down another. It took 10 minutes to reunite the First Family.

Next stop — one not scheduled in advance — was the Victorian-style boarding house of Mrs. Martha Falls, a spry, white-haired lady who bought the place in 1935 after Johnson had left San Marcos.

Taking Mrs. Falls in tow,

Technical Bumps Delay Launching

Titan 3A Rocket

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Technical problems forced a 24-hour postponement of an attempt to launch a Titan 3A military space rocket on an orbital test flight. The launching was rescheduled for 10:00 a.m. EST today.

The major trouble developed after the countdown had advanced to within 21 minutes of launching the 124-foot-tall rocket.

The Air Force reported the trouble was in a telemetry system in the third stage that radios performance data to the ground during the flight.

The rocket, which is scheduled to play a major role in U. S. manned and unmanned military space programs, is to hurl its third stage into orbit as a space launching platform, and the platform in turn is to launch a dummy satellite.

Johnson headed for his old first-floor bedroom.

"I just want to see the room where I lived," he explained. "It's very much the way it was then."

Going next past the Hays County courthouse, Johnson decided to have his car make a U turn. The police car leading the procession was faked out by this maneuver and headed in the wrong direction.

After another stop at the white-columned home of Dr. William Crook, president of San Marcos Academy, a Baptist institution, Johnson began inspecting the town.

Finally, the caravan halted and a Secret Service agent asked a bystander for directions to "the Kellam house." The man ran inside and emerged with a telephone directory.

Under way again, the motorcade proceeded to the home of aging Mrs. Juliet Kellam, widow mother of J. C. Kellam, manager of the Johnson-owned television station, KTBC, in Austin.

During his 90-minute tour of San Marcos, Johnson once stopped when he spotted an old college classmate, Fenner Roth of Corpus Christi, along the roadside. Racing up to join in greeting the President was Roth's son, Lyndon, named for the chief executive.

Earlier, Johnson had tarried beside a power plant to visit with workers in hard hats. Noting that the power station was floodlit, even at 10 a.m., he exclaimed:

"Do you all leave those lights burning there in the daytime?"

About the collision: Johnson's car stopped so suddenly at the power plant that a staff car bumped the rear of the closed limousine in which Mrs. Johnson was riding.

The First Lady's vehicle was undamaged and she was only jostled. The staff car drove away with one busted headlight, a smashed parking light, bashed-in grille, crumpled fender and dented bumper.

MLF' BEING DROPPED

Atlantic Protection Force Beginning To Take Shape

By CARL HARTMAN BONN, Germany (AP) — A clearer picture is emerging of the Atlantic nuclear force that the United States, Britain and West Germany are moving toward — an air, sea and land force under international command.

The picture was obscured last month when Britain's new Labor government came up surprisingly with some new ideas on the subject. During the election campaign, Labor candidates were so strongly against plans for the nuclear force that hopes for British participation were dim.

Since then, however, high-level officials of all three countries have visited back and forth, and a lot more trips are in the offing.

This is the way things look now:

The name "MLF" seems to be out, at British insistence. No alternative has been picked, but one suggestion is "Atlantic Missile Force."

The purpose of the force would be to help prevent the building of H-bombs by countries that do not have them now — notably West Germany. Communist propaganda pictures West Germany as a land of militarists and neo-Nazis panting to get their hands on nuclear weapons in order to attack the Soviet Union.

The force would also lock its members more firmly into an Atlantic partnership linking America and Europe. This is why it is opposed so strongly by French President Charles de Gaulle, who wants a European nuclear force led by France.

The new Atlantic force would not include America's long-range and intermediate weapons — the strategic bombers, intercontinental missiles and nuclear submarines now in service.

ice. The United States would retain control of those, though it might accept more European advice on their use. The United States would also have veto power over the use of the new force.

In addition to the United States, Britain and West Germany, the force would include contributions from as many as possible of the other 12 nations in the Atlantic alliance. The best prospects are Holland, Italy, Greece, Turkey and possibly Belgium.

A place would be left open for France, in the hope—a meager one—that De Gaulle might change his mind, and that his successor might be more amenable.

The force would still include a fleet of surface ships, armed with American Polaris missiles and manned by mixed crews of the nations taking part. Nuclear warheads would be under American control, as American law requires.

The British would like to see only 10 or a dozen of these built, rather than the 25 previously planned. Instead, the British suggest adding British-built planes, American submarines to be sold to Britain, and Pershing rockets already in West Germany—all of them capable of firing nuclear warheads.

Something like that also was proposed by the previous British government.

Authoritative sources say the difference is that the Labor government is ready to forego a veto on the use of the force and to promise not to withdraw British units for purely British purposes. Other nations would be called on to make similar pledges.

These changes make British participation, much desired from the beginning, even more attractive to the United States and West Germany.

The British have been careful to say they are only presenting ideas—not formal proposals. Something more concrete is expected to emerge from meetings of the British inner Cabinet this week end.

The British hope Prime Minister Harold Wilson will be able to get President Johnson's agreement to their ideas when he visits Washington Dec. 7 and 8.

Main difficulties still:

1. Who will command the force? The Americans and West Germans would like to put it under the supreme commander of the alliance in Europe who is now an American—Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer—and probably always will be. The British would like to put the force under direct control of the governments concerned. This would give the British government certainty that politicians rather than soldiers would have their fingers on the button.

2. How would governmental control be arranged? It seems to be agreed that the United States should have a veto, but no other single country. But should the United States plus Britain be able to fire the weapons? The United States plus West Germany? The United States plus West Germany—or Britain—plus the other members?

3. How about those Pershing missiles owned by West Germany, with their warheads still under American control? Should they be thrown into the international pot, too? The Germans are against this. To them it looks like a form of disengagement, a weakening of the Western deterrent, a partial military pullout from Central Europe in the hope that the Russians would pull out, too.

Come on darling, you're out in on the theft of the century — and I've got what it takes...

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 11-21

Refused Admission

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A federal judge took under study Friday several motions in the $100,000 civil rights damage suit by Dr. Bertrand Tyson, Plaquemine Negro physician.

U.S. Dist. Judge E. Gordon West heard argument on the motions. Tyson claims he was denied service at the Celebrity Lounge in Plaquemine and arrested by police on the lounge premises July 16.

He later was found innocent of charges of disturbing the peace, being drunk and disorderly conduct.

Defendants are Offie Stewart, operator of the lounge, Mrs. Stewart, policemen Clarence J. Cazes, Lionel Stein, Lester Haydel Jr., Samuel Savage, and Police Chief Dennis Songy.

Tyson's attorney contended his rights were violated when he was refused service and arrested.

He contended Tyson has a right to sue under a civil rights provision prohibiting persons acting in conspiracy to deprive persons of their constitutional rights under color of state law custom or usage.

Car Crash Fatal

HOUMA, La. (AP)—A. D. Johnson, 60, of Houma died Thursday when his car skidded on a wet highway and struck a utility pole.

Assumption Parish Sheriff Murray Landry said Johnson was thrown from the car and fell on an 11,000-volt power line. His death was ruled due to electric shock.

Mother Alice Dies

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Mother Alice, 67, local superior of the Sisters of St. Joseph and well-known educator, died Friday at Our Lady of the Lake Hospital.

Death was attributed to a heart attack and complications. She became ill Aug. 12.

A requiem mass for Mother Alice will be celebrated at Sacred Heart Catholic Church today.

Profit At Airport

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The New Orleans Lakefront Airport

will show a profit this year for the first time in its 30-year history, Milton Dupuy, Orleans Levee Board president, said Friday.

Dupuy said the airport should clear $2,383 compared with a loss of $24,085 last year. The levee board owns and operates the airport.

The lakefront airport, built in 1933, handled commercial flights until the International Airport was opened years later. The airport now is used by business and privately owned planes.

Man Killed In Fall

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A 23-year-old carpenter fell 73 feet to his death Friday from the steel superstructure of an interstate highway bridge being built over the Industrial Canal here.

Archie Ray Cummings of Greensburg was helping build wooden forms so concrete could be poured around the steel beams. Officers said he was holding two 10-foot boards when they gave way and pulled him down through the bridge structure.

Cummings was an employee of the Boh Brothers Construction Co.

Flag Is Returned

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The coveted Louisiana State-Tulane "rag" turned up Friday in the hands of Tulane students.

LSU officials said Tulane security officers apprehended the students who smashed a display case at the LSU Student Union here Thursday night and fled with the flag.

A spokesman said Tulane students who stole the "rag" were withheld. No further details were immediately available.

The LSU spokesman said Tulane authorities will return the flag to LSU when their football teams clash Saturday.

The flag is a symbol of the traditional rivalry of the LSU Tigers and the Tulane University Greenies. It is retained by the winner of the annual football game. LSU has had the flag since 1956.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

JOTTINGS IN PENCIL... Diane Varsi, the young actress who announced her retirement from Hollywood and a promising career in April, 1959 will definitely return to films. It's all been arranged and the full details will be flashed soon... They laughed when Richard Burton ogled the wooden statue of his wife used in "Flight of the Sandpiper." But at the Druant Gallery in Paris, where the statue was parked, there was a Chagall hanging behind it. Now Dickie wants to buy the Chagall as a Christmas present for his bride, and it's valued at more than $50,000. If all goes well, Cy Feuer will bring the magical Mary Martin back to Broadway in his musical adaptation of "Hobson's Choice." All she has to do is murmur "yes."

Sophia Loren's appearances in England, where she's filming the spy drama, "Operation Crossbow," caused a fantastic amount of excitement. Although guarded by many men in uniform, Sophia has stopped eating her meals in public, and rarely steps out of the Studio or the 300-year-old castle in which she's living. The crowds are simply too much... Is it Tuesday World time again? Well, her newest "serious" romance is recording executive Nick Venet. Alan Jay Lerner wants famed British choreographer Robert Helpmann to stage the dancing for "On A Clear Day You Can See Forever"... An emerald necklace—137 stones, 440 carats—now adorns the throat of Juan Peron's current wife. Once the prized possession of Evita Peron, it was delivered to the ex-dictator by Swiss agents 10 days ago.

The Big Talk in Hollywood is Jack Warner's problems with "The Great Race." It's over-budget and over-schedule, and its stars—Tony Curtis, Jack Lemmon and Natalie Wood—aren't ecstatic about the way things have been going. The location in Europe was all fouled up because of unpreparedness, and the latest rumor is that Warner will try to avoid a Zaunck-Mankiewicz "Cleopatra" repeat by yanking the movie from Blake Edwards and doing the final cutting himself.

Ray Walston, who will be in town next month for the premiere of "Kiss Me, Stupid," will confer with David Merrick about a new play for next season. It would mark Ray's return to the Broadway stage... The FBI has just located Woody Herman's beautiful new sports car, stolen from him near the Sherman Hotel in Chicago. The story is that an AWOL sailor took the auto and dumped it in Kansas City. Woody hopes to have it returned by the time he opens at Birdland Nov. 24.

Jill St. John, warming up to play the "big action" clubs like those in Vegas and such elegant places as New York's Persian Room, is having a musical act designed by Ferrante and Teicher, the ace piano team... Nick Condos, Martha Raye's former husband, is currently a patient in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Hollywood... Just the rumor that the United States may supply needed food for Cuba has the capitals of Central and South America in an uproar. If it happens, there will be an anti-U.S. barrage from every Latin American leader who joined us in boycotting Castro... Dennis Crosby and Arleen Buell (Joey Bishop's secretary) have cancelled their wedding plans.

In case you're interested in the latest wrinkle in movie policy, a theatre in the fifties reportedly has been sold to a group which will showcase Chinese films... Three of the important men's shops on Broadway are ordering steel window guards to protect their premises from gangs of looters. It happens so often now, the crimes don't even make the papers any more... Walter Matthau was originally offered the Alan Arkin role in "Luv." and everything seemed to be set, but then came the big billing brouhaha. He wanted his name over Eli Wallach's. Result: No cigar.

London's switchboard operators were so swamped with requests for the telephone number of Elstree Studio where Sean Connery is filming "The Hill" that the post office (which controls the phone system there) agreed to install a private line to his dressing room free of charge. They think it will come out less expensive than taking the operators' valuable time. The magic number in case you want to call Sean overseas, is Elstree 007, and lots of luck.

HEALTHY TEETOTALER

LONDON (UPI)—The British Medical Journal reported that a man recovered from a heart attack suffered after drinking 36 pints of beer in one day. The report said the man, who drank for 31 years, now is a healthy teetotaler.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A WOULD-BE SUPERMAN

Disturbed interpersonal relationships, especially in marital partners, often result in bizarre behavior by either or both. Capt. Bernard H. Wittenberg reports in the American Journal of Psychiatry the case history of a sergeant who gratified his unconscious emotional needs by carrying on a fabrication about working on a space project. The tall tales lasted six years. When he told his wife the truth, she went to pieces.

As a boy, he was left to himself, and read voraciously. King Author was his particular hero. Later, he had five years of college (but no degree) and was washed out of officers' candidate school because of poor scholastic performance. He married a woman with a master's degree in education. She tended to be critical of his ability to rise in the world. She criticized his upbringing, took over the family finances and insisted she was "smarter" than he.

This woman became pregnant and went to her parents' home in a distant city to await the baby. While she was away, the sergeant went to the movies several nights a week, and, on the day of her return, he didn't want to miss a picture he had planned on seeing. He told his wife he couldn't spend the evening with her because he was working on a secret project in space. Thru the years, he weaved a science fiction tale about his job that could have become a best seller. His "smart" wife swallowed it all — that he had orbited not only the moon but Mars and Venus. The sergeant finally ran out of ideas, or his conscience bothered him. But when he tried to convince his wife that the whole thing had been imaginary, she refused to believe it.

He consulted the psychiatric service, saying he feared his wife had become mentally ill because of his big lie. Dr. Wittenberg likens the situation to an imposter and his audience; unless the audience responds, the charlatan fails. He said this woman "supported, sustained and nourished her husband's imposture and was herself supported, sustained, and nourished by it. The intensity of her emotional dependence upon the imposture was betrayed by her husband shed his space facade." We can only hope the sergeant will stick to reality and leave the super-achievements to the scientists.

Dispute In Congo U.N.'s Business, Secretary States

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant stepped into the Congo crisis Friday with a statement that any situation endangering world peace should be brought to the U.N. Security Council.

Thant's action was based on reports that Belgian paratroops had been flown in U. S. planes to Ascension Island, a British possession in the South Atlantic, to stand by if needed to rescue whites held by Congo rebels in Stanleyville.

A spokesman for Thant said the secretary-general "feels very strongly that any situation endangering international peace and security should be brought to the U.N. Security Council. Under the terms of the U.N. Charter any other course is bound to lead to undesirable consequences."

The spokesman made clear that Thant was not issuing any call for a Security Council meeting at this time.

He added that Thant had not yet transmitted his views to any U.N. member, including the United States, Britain and Belgium.

Womack Explains Admits Slaying, Vote Against Bill

World Legislative Bureau
BATON ROUGE—Rep. Lantz Womack of Winnsboro said Friday he voted against the one-cent sales tax bill because he thought it should have provided revenue for "various aspects of state government."

Womack, a floor leader for Gov. John J. McKeithen and Rep. W. J. R. Richardson, Columbia, were the only Fifth District solons voting against the tax designed to fully implement the teacher salary schedule.

He said, "I hope to do what I can to help pass the administration's real estate transfer tax to give the teachers a pay raise."

Commenting on his vote against the sales tax, Womack said, "I can't justify the amount of money, which would have required the payment of taxes by many, many poor people to give increases in excess of their total income to people who are already relatively well off."

Womack said that since the Legislature convened last Monday it was generally known that a sales tax couldn't pass, explaining, "that is the reason the administration, of which I am a part, has gone all out to look for other sources of revenue in order to raise the funds for education."

But he added, "It is my feeling that the schedule submitted by the LTA, although in the best interest of teachers, may not be in the best interest of education."

Womack said he thought the schedule should emphasize increase for beginning teachers in an effort to attract young teachers to the Louisiana system.

"It is very questionable as to how much more tax raising ability the state will have," Womack said. "If we passed a one-cent sales tax now, we would not doubt find ourselves in a worse condition financially in the years to come than we are in right now."

Womack said he thought a sales tax should also go toward road construction, maintenance, municipal and parish aid, welfare and old age assistance or "in any manner to induce industry or otherwise tend to create wealth within Franklin Parish."

MARRIAGE RATE UP

Orleans Negro Police Report

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police said Friday night a Negro has admitted the rape-slaying of a New Orleans woman in her fashionable home.

Officers said Frank Williams, 22, of New Orleans, would be charged in the killing of Mrs. Louis Harris.

The woman was beaten, raped and shot in her home when she returned from a grocery shopping trip. A witness working nearby said he heard a shot and saw a Negro running away from the house.

Mrs. Harris was the mother of two children and the wife of a New Orleans business executive.

Police said Williams also admitted a 1961 slaying of a teenage girl in New Orleans and would be charged with that murder.

improving courses in public schools.

Joseph C. Glorioso, the department's supervisor of mathematics, will serve as committee secretary.

Committee members are Dr. William E. Timon, professor of mathematics at Northwestern State College; Dr. Merlin M. Ohmer, professor of mathematics, University of Southwestern Louisiana; Dr. Donald E. Shipp, associate professor of education, Louisiana State University; Mrs. Angeline Werner, supervisor of mathematics, Orleans Parish; Brother Edward Lee, mathematics department head, Holy Cross High School, New Orleans; and Miss Lucille Begnaud, mathematics department head, Lafayette High School.

ST. FRANCIS was patron of birds, but his namesake city of San Francisco has a pigeon problem of prolific proportions, as portrayed in this picture of a promenade through downtown Union Square. Pedestrians have to duck to prevent collisions — or worse. City Supervisors, however, passed an anti-feeding ordinance — effective next July. Previous programs have been pigeon-holed because of bird lovers' protests. (AP Wirephoto)

FOR SAFER SQUARES

Pigeon Feeders Must Obey Law

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After years of civic wrangling, San Francisco's board of supervisors has passed a law making it a crime to feed pigeons except in 10 specified areas.

The purpose is to drive at least some of the estimated 50,000 pigeons from the downtown squares, public buildings and statutory.

As of July 1, 1965, anyone feeding pigeons except in 10 specified stations in city parks, will face a fine of up to $500 and jail for up to six months.

Typical of the present problem is Union Square, a green oasis in the heart of the city.

Literally thousands of pigeons make it their home. They brazenly demand handouts, perch on visitors' shoulders, and swarm into the air at the slightest alarm. They splatter benches, sidewalks and pedestrians.

The revolt against the reign of the pigeons is not new, but city officials hope the latest plan will be more successful than others.

A similar law several years ago was withdrawn because of the wrath of the Bird Guardians League, an organization whose members feed pigeons and hire guards to protect them from poisoners.

Once the supervisors bought some slippery stuff to spread on pigeon perches. When it dried the pigeons returned.

Dummy owls, placed on cornices, failed to fool the dumbest squab.

Even as the new law was adopted, the guardians vowed to fight to keep the City of St. Francis — patron saint of birds — a pigeon sanctuary forever.

And the pigeons still swirl through Union Square.

IN WEST MONROE

Postal Employees Get Forward Look

Some 25 West Monroe postal employees, along with 200,000 of their uniformed brethren across the nation, are about to get the "forward look." Postmaster Homer B. Roark, revealed Friday.

"They'll soon be going in the same direction as the horses on their shoulder patches," he explained. "Or, depending on how you look at it, the horses will be going in the same direction as the employees."

What it boils down to is that, effective Feb. 1, the white on maroon shoulder insignia of the heck-for-leather riding postal rider will be reversed on the emblems. Worn on the left shoulder, the pony now appears to be galloping as rapidly as possible away from its bearer.

"To many southbound horses on northbound postmen," mused Roark. "Or maybe they thought those horses pulling in the

Trio Hurt As 3-Vehicle Crash Ties Up Traffic

A three-vehicle accident at the foot to the Louisville Avenue bridge during the evening traffic rush hour Friday, resulted in three persons receiving minor injuries and a traffic jam that held west-bound traffic motionless for about 45 minutes.

Traffic stalled from the accident scene at Riverside Street was double-laned, bumper to bumper for over 24 blocks east.

As a result, traffic to the north of Louisville, beginning at Riverside to North 5th St., was tied up completely, resulting in further traffic jams on north-side streets running parallel with Louisville Avenue.

A check by the Morning World showed streets in a 16 square block section north of the jammed Highway 80 thoroughfare to be filled with motionless vehicles.

Receiving minor injuries in the smashup were Frank C. Williams, Dubach; driver of a tractor-trailer; Ronnie Dufrene, 23, 1215 Tulane St., West Monroe; and Casey C. Phillips, 53, 112 Slack St., West Monroe.

According to investigating Monroe police, cars driven by Dufrene and Phillips were stopped for a light at the Riverside-Louisville intersection when the fuel transport, belonging to Davidson Transport of Ruston, slammed into the Dufrene vehicle knocking it into the Phillips car.

Williams was booked for following too close and using improper trailer license plates.

Ultra-Liberal GOP Head Seen

CHARLES KLUSMANN

Navy Releases Escape Details

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Lt. Cmdr. Charles Klusmann, held by friendly forces and a request was sent out for a plane, the Navy said.

"I couldn't get my shoes on at all, so they gave me some things to wear," the report quoted Klusmann as saying. "They just about carried me outside and up the side of the hill to the little landing strip."

Klusmann escaped Sept. 1, rejoined his wife and family in San Diego, was promoted from lieutenant to lieutenant commander, and resumed duty Friday at nearby Miramar Naval Air Station.

But he has not been allowed to talk to newsmen and details of the escape was not disclosed until the Navy released a 30-page report Friday.

The report said three Laotian prisoners held the Communist Pathet Lao camp with Klusmann but only one made it to safety. One stayed behind to wait for others after the break, and another was captured during the flight, the report said.

Included in the report was a statement from the Navy on Communist allegations that Klusmann signed a statement favorable to the Communist cause.

The Navy said Klusmann acknowledged he signed a statement during a severe illness but that there is no indication that this is the statement referred to by the Communists.

The report indicated that the statement Klusmann signed said he had been adequately fed and cared for and requested his release.

"Therefore," the report said, "the Navy concluded that during his imprisonment, while very ill, under the influence of drugs, and after a prolonged period of physical and mental stress, Lt. Klusmann had signed a document, but that no military information had been divulged, that no intentional violation of the code of conduct had occurred, and that Lt. Klusmann's performance throughout courageous escape, had been entirely satisfactory."

Klusmann was flying an unarmed photographic reconnaissance flight from the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk when his plane was hit by ground fire near Khang Khay, the Navy said.

After his escape from a mud hut concentration camp, Klusmann and his Laotian companions made their way through a leech-infested jungle to territory held by friendly forces and a request was sent out for a plane, the Navy said.

"I couldn't get my shoes on at all, so they gave me some things to wear," the report quoted Klusmann as saying. "They just about carried me outside and up the side of the hill to the little landing strip."

"The plane had landed and a fellow came running down the hill, an American, calling my name — and it was about the greatest sound I've ever heard in my life."

Church Rites

Several churches in the area have special activities planned for Sunday. Among them are Mt. Olive Baptist Church near Hodge (auditorium dedication), First Baptist Church of Harrisonburg, and First Baptist Church of Jonesville (Harvest Day). Free Methodist Church of Jonesville (revival starting).

Senators, Broadcasters Draw Swords For TV Juvenile Delinquency Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A row, sparked by senatorial charges that crime and violence on television help lead to juvenile delinquency apparently is coming to a head.

Senators have started talking of possible new laws to force action if the television industry doesn't "clean its own house," as they put it.

The industry, contending the senatorial accusations are exaggerated and in some cases unwarranted, has served notice it will fight any move toward federal censorship of programs.

The combatants are the Senate subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency and the National Assn. of Broadcasters, representing the bulk of the industry.

The subcommittee has cited a number of crimes including killings, extortion, robbery and gang violence by youngsters who allegedly got the idea from television programs.

The subcommittee's chairman, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has ordered a massive project to monitor every program aired in the Washington area, to get evidence for subsequent public hearings.

No date has been announced for the hearings, but they are expected to get under way well before spring.

NAB's Code Review Board, an organization of nine broadcasters administering its Code of Fair Practices, has scheduled meetings here Dec. 9-10. The subcommittee's Oct. 27 report to the Senate contended that television programs excessively featuring crime, violence and brutality are a proved factor in juvenile delinquency although not the only one.

"The patience of Congress, though considerable, is not endless," the report said in warning.

Howard H. Bell, NAB code director, told a reporter by telephone from New York City the subcommittee report made a number of unwarranted allegations, including one that many broadcasters seem to violate the code with impunity.

The subcommittee praised the code's content but said it was poorly enforced and that many violators continued to display the NAB "seal of fair practice" in advertising which supposedly attests compliance with the code.

Bell denied that enforcement of the code is lax. He said many radio and television stations have lost their right to display the seal, and that the industry is taking steps to sharpen the sting.

He said these steps include a new policy of publishing the names of stations which lose the seal, plus an educational campaign designed to win public support for compliance with the code.

Bell said the industry does not claim it is perfect, but that it can and does police itself effectively, strives to improve its standards, and will resist any government regulation of the content of its programs.

He said any such legislation would violate constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and of the press.

In a letter to Dodd dated Nov. 5, Bell and Vincent T. Wasilewski, NAB executive vice president, said "We are continually seeking ways to make our voluntary code efforts more effective, but we reject the use of legislative fiat to achieve this end. This would be government control of program content and it would be repugnant to the Constitution's First Amendment."

Behind the controversy are a series of subcommittee studies of television programs since the mid-1950s, culminating in its most critical report in October which said little significant improvement could be observed in the volume of excessive crime and violence in shows.

To prepare for the next round of hearings, subcommittee aides working in relays are being assigned to monitor every television program broadcast in this area, over some stated early winter period. They will make notes on any which seem to violate the code's edicts against unnecessary featuring of crime, violence, brutality, horror and sex.

Bell predicted the monitoring would show the industry is doing a good job of improving the quality of programs.

Bell said NAB is making a "sincere and responsible effort — a meaningful effort — to find out the facts in an objective manner" as to whether television really has been a significant factor in delinquency, among other things.

The industry's long-term project is being handled by an organization known as the Joint Committee for Research on Television and Children. Gerhardt Wiebe, dean of the Boston University School of Public Communications, heads that committee.

Bell said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Foundation for Character Development, NAB and the major television networks all are represented on the joint committee.

Monroe Center Elects Officers

F. M. Hood has been elected chairman of the Monroe Day Care Center Board of Directors.

Others officers named at a recent meeting of the board were Mrs. A. E. Patterson, vice-chairman; Mrs. Lindsey Wells, treasurer; Mrs. W. K. Harris, secretary; and Mrs. Hays B. Clark, Jr., publicity chairman.

Mrs. Thelma Kilpatrick, instructor of pre-school retarded children at the center, discussed with the board the need for 10 small classroom chairs and enlargement and year-round screening of the porch.

The need for a special Sunday program at the center was also expressed by Mrs. Kilpatrick, who said attempts will be made to secure volunteer Sunday school teachers and program materials.
